BARAMATI

Maharashtra Deputy Chief Minister and Nationalist Congress Party supremo Ajit Pawar was killed in a plane crash in Baramati on Wednesday morning, along with four others on board.

The Learjet 45 aircraft, belonging to Delhi-based charter company VSR Ventures, took off from Mumbai at 8.10 a.m. and disappeared from the radar at 8.45 a.m. Mr. Pawar, his personal security officer Vidip Jadhav, pilot Capt. Sumit Kapur, co-pilot Shambhavi Pathak, and flight attendant Pinky Mali were declared dead. Forensic teams were deployed at the crash site and an inquiry will be conducted.

The Pawar family and the State government have denied foul play, appealing to people not to politicise the tragedy.

Despite the crash site being cordoned off, hundreds of people gathered near the area close to the runway.

The debris, strewn over a few metres, contained only a wing and a few fragments; most of the aircraft was reduced to ashes. Mr. Pawar's mortal remains were taken to the Baramati Medical College for a post-mortem examination and brought to the Vidya Pratishthan ground in Baramati to allow people to pay their respects. "A post mortem was conducted," a senior leader present in Baramati since morning, told The Hindu.

The Maharashtra government declared a three-day State mourning. The last rites will be held with full State honours at Baramati at 11 a.m. on Thursday.

Centre working with 'full sensitivity' for all communities: Murmu

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

Amid different opinions and diverse viewpoints, there has been unanimity about nothing being greater than the nation

DROUPADI MURMU
President of India

Saying that the Union government is working towards social justice, President Droupadi Murmu on Wednesday asked MPs to stand as one on issues of national security, Viksit Bharat (developed India) and the campaign for swadeshi.

In her address to a joint sitting of both Houses of Parliament, the President invoked Mahatma Gandhi, Jawaharlal Nehru, Babasaheb Ambedkar, and leaders such as Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, Jayaprakash Narayan, Ram Manohar Lohia, Deendayal Upadhyaya, and Atal Bihari Vajpayee to note that "amid different opinions and diverse viewpoints, there has been unanimity about nothing being greater than the nation".

'Reform express'

She said that the government was accelerating the "reform express" for achieving a developed India by 2047.

Amid unease over certain sections of the University Grants Commission's regulations to promote equity in higher education institutions, the President said the government was working with "full sensitivity" for all – for Dalits, Backward Classes, the marginalised, and tribal communities.

In 2014, social security schemes could reach only 25 crore citizens, she said, adding that efforts of the government had seen 95 crore Indians receiving social security cover currently. Ms. Murmu said the architect of the Constitution, B.R. Ambedkar, had always laid emphasis on equality and social justice.

"Our Constitution inspires us in the same spirit," she said, underlining that social justice means every citizen gets to exercise full rights, without discrimination.

The President said the world saw the valour of Indian armed forces through Operation Sindoor.

Court accepts Lokayukta police's 'B' report giving clean chit to CM, wife in MUDA case

Krishnaprasad
BENGALURU

In a major relief to Chief Minister Siddaramaiah, a special court in Bengaluru on Wednesday accepted the 'B' report filed by the Karnataka Lokayukta police in the allegation of illegalities and corruption in allotment of 14 sites worth ₹56 crore to his wife Parvathi by the Mysuru Urban Development Authority (MUDA).

Santosh Gajanan Bhat, the judge of the special court of sessions for criminal cases against former and present MPs and MLAs, delivered the verdict while rejecting the protest petition filed by complainant Snehamayi Krishna, a Mysuru-based social activist, who had questioned the outcome of the investigation conducted by the Lokayukta police.

Probe to continue

The special court also ac-

cepted the 'B' report filed in favour of two other persons, B.M. Mallikarjuna Swamy, brother of Ms. Parvathi, and Devaraju J., who had sold three acres and 16 guntas of land to Mr. Mallikarjua Swamy after getting it denotified from the MUDA.

However, the special court said that the investigation against other accused persons by the Lokayukta police on alleged illegalities and corruption in MUDA site allotment would continue, while also recognising the Enforcement Directorate (ED)'s right to intervene in the case as an 'aggrieved party' for limited extent.

The full copy copy of the judgment is yet to be released as the judge has read out only the operative portion of it.

Background of case

Mr. Krishna and three other social activists had filed private complaints before the special court during June-July, 2024 against Mr. Siddaramaiah and others.

No notices to 88% T.N. voters facing deletion: SC to hear plea

Krishnadas Rajagopal
NEW DELHI

Around 88% of those voters in Tamil Nadu in the draft electoral rolls facing exclusion in the name of logical discrepancies and mapping during the special intensive revision (SIR) had not received hearing notices, ruling party leaders in the State submitted before the Supreme Court on Wednesday.

The petitioners urged the court to hear their plea on Thursday in the presence of the Election Commission (EC) for giving an explanation. A Bench headed by Chief Justice of India Surya Kant agreed to the request.

Appearing before the Bench, senior advocate Kapil Sibal, representing the petitioner-leaders from the Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam (DMK), submitted that the objections-and-claims phase in Tamil Nadu was coming to a close on Friday.

An application filed by DMK leader R.S. Bharathi for the State's ruling party said electoral registration officers (EROs) had issued "logical discrepancy forms" to 1.7 crore voters. "However, the statistics regarding the issuance of these notices of logical discrepancy are alarming," the application filed through advocate Vivek Singh noted.

It said out of the required 1.7 crore notices, 32,19,752 were not even generated or printed yet. Of the notices generated, only 18,25,739 were formally served.

'Introspection needed on incidents after Governor's speech'

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Expressing concern over the incidents and abrasive debates that have taken place in the Assembly after the Governor delivered a truncated address to the joint session of the legislature, Speaker U.T. Khader on Wednesday asked all members of the House to carry out an introspection of their conduct.

"The incidents and debates that have taken place in the Assembly after the Governor addressed a joint session of the legislature on January 22 has sent a wrong message to the public. Our conduct as members of the House should not only be good and in tune with Constitutional norms, but also help uphold the dignity of the House as well as its members. As members of the House, all of us, should carry out an introspection in this regard," the Speaker said.

It's scary to think where India will be in five years' time

Former England wicketkeeper Sarah Taylor, the fielding coach of Giants in WPL-4, says that the Women in Blue are making rapid strides due to the exposure they are getting; feels that the franchise leagues have made women's cricket more exciting and competitive

> I actually look back on my career now, and realise how amazing it was when we won so many things. We had an era of England cricket that was so good, and our XI just picked itself

GETTY IMAGES

INTERVIEW

Sarah Taylor

Vivek Krishnan
VADODARA

Sarah Taylor has been a trailblazer in women's cricket in many ways.

During her distinguished playing career for England, spanning a 13-year period (2006 to 2019), she was a wicketkeeper of such supreme skill that Australian legend Adam Gilchrist, in 2018, described her as the best in the world - male or female - behind the stumps. Known particularly for her sharpness standing up to the wicket, she effected 104 stumpings in 226 matches across all formats.

A long-standing battle with mental health forced Sarah to retire from international cricket at the age of 30, but it hasn't deterred her from continuing to leave her stamp on the willow game.

In 2021, she made headlines around the world for breaking the glass ceiling when she was roped in by County side Sussex as part of the support staff for the men's team. A year later, she became a specialist wicketkeeping coach for Manchester Originals in the men's Hundred. Currently, she is part of the coaching staff helmed by Andrew Flintoff at England Lions, which acts as a feeder to the senior men's set-up.

In mid-2025, her induction into the International Cricket Council's Hall of Fame alongside M.S. Dhoni, Matthew Hayden, Graeme Smith, Hashim Amla, Daniel Vettori and Sana Mir was another feather in an already-ornate cap.

Sarah has now made her way to the Women's Premier League as well as fielding coach of the Gujarat Giants. In a wide-ranging interview with The Hindu on a breezy Sunday morning, the 36-year-old opened up about her induction into the ICC Hall of Fame, her coaching assignments, mental health, and her fondness for the craft of wicketkeeping...

This is your first involvement as a coach in the WPL. What took you this long?

I struggled with travel. So, the idea of coming to India, lots of people, lots of fans, I found it quite overwhelming. So, it never happened, but also, I didn't even think I'd get a chance to come to a tournament like this.

And then, I got asked, because I was doing the Hundred with Manchester Originals. Once you get your foot in the door of franchise cricket, people look around in that bubble. And so, I was lucky enough that Gujarat looked at me last year and asked, "Would you like to come?" It just didn't happen. But I did say, please ask me again. So, yeah, it has taken a little bit of time, but I'm glad I'm here.

You were inducted into the ICC Hall of Fame in 2025. What did that recognition mean to you? What is your proudest moment as an England cricketer?

I cried when I got the email. I couldn't believe it was for real. I just didn't realise that my career was probably as recognised in that regard anyway. So, to have that recognition was insane. It was absolutely unbelievable. You think that you've done a good job, and then something like that is obviously a little bit more than a pat on the back.

Look, the ODI World Cup win at Lord's in 2017. That will always be... yeah, I can still hear the sound of the ball hitting the stumps when Anya Shrubsole took the last wicket, and my screaming at the top of my lungs.

I actually look back on my career now, and realise how amazing it was when we won so many things. We had an era of England cricket that was so good, and our XI just picked itself. But also, I learnt so much from the times when it was so hard, and we were struggling to find a win. That journey was probably what I was most proud of.

You have been involved as a coach in men's cricket since 2021. Did you have apprehensions stepping in? It did seem to polarise opinion when you first got involved...

I was working with wicketkeepers at Dulwich College in London after my retirement. Richard Halsall, who was Sussex Academy lead at the time, saw a need to bring in a keeping coach at Sussex. He asked me to come and work with the Academy keepers, and then it was, well why doesn't she work with the pro keepers if it's going well? So then it just built from there.

It just happened really organically, and I was lucky to be surrounded by people like Ian Salisbury, James Kirtley and Grant Flower. They were so supportive that I never had any apprehension. I did see the comments online, and I can't hide from those, and I was a bit in a place of like, well, I'll prove you wrong.

Do you feel you have proved cynics wrong?

You still get the comments. Even with the England Lions stuff, I still get comments that I shouldn't be working with the guys. But it's the opinion within the cricket world that matters most to me, and if you can get those jobs, and people are approaching you for those jobs, then you must be doing something right.

I don't necessarily know if I've proved people wrong, but, I'm still coaching, and I'm still doing the Lions stuff. I've just got a contract with the England & Wales Cricket Board (ECB), so I must be doing something.

> As a traditionalist, I always want the best wicketkeeper to play. But I understand the need for balance in a side

Do you feel more women can go down your route and become a coach with men's teams?

Yeah, absolutely. You've got to have a certain way about you to understand the men's environment. The way they deal with things, the way they approach things, and you have to have that understanding, as any male coach would have to understand going into a female set up. I think there are some personalities out there who could absolutely cross that line. It's just whether the coach can facilitate what the players need, and there are certainly female coaches out there who can facilitate what a guy needs. Wicketkeeping lends itself to it a little bit, just because the nature of catching a ball is exactly the same.

During your playing days, you said that you didn't believe in saying a lot behind the stumps, but wanted to have a presence. How did you go about managing that?

If you ask anyone that I played against, I didn't say too much. I said a lot to my teammates, but I never said too much to the batters.

But if I catch everything, batters know that as soon as they edge it, they are gone. Or if they miss, I am going to knock off the bails. It was about trying to get that into their head, so that was where the presence came from. I'll always try to pass that on.

Different 'keepers have different techniques. Dhoni, for example, had a unique way of gathering the ball to effect quick stumpings and run-outs. When you're coaching 'keepers, what is the way you go about teaching technique?

I probably moulded myself a little bit on Dhoni towards the end of my career in terms of the speed from my gather to the stumps. A lot of stumpings now are a foot just raising slightly, and that's it. That's the difference sometimes, and the taking of the ball back is going out of the game because the time is not there. I find that exciting. I love coaching speed, and showing them how quick they can be, so that is going into the game.

Teams are constantly gravitating towards batters who can keep wickets rather than specialists with the gloves. What is your view on that?

As a traditionalist, I always want the best wicketkeeper to play. But I understand the need for balance in a side. If you can have that batter towards the end who can bat with the bowlers, and sometimes the best 'keepers aren't necessarily that batter, I get that. But if you've got your best 'keeper, they will affect the game in a way that the batter-keepers won't.

Who are the wicketkeepers that you enjoy watching most?

Beth Mooney, just don't tell her that I like watching her (laughs). Amy Jones will always be one, she's phenomenal.

Alex Carey is pretty good. I absolutely love watching Ben Foakes. He just makes it look so easy that it's ridiculous. I used to love watching Dhoni when he was playing for India. I like Quinton de Kock as well, just because he's so carefree with it. It amazes me how good he is. I'll just keep watching 'keepers, I'm a bit of a badger. That's the first thing I notice during a cricket match.

You've been candid about your mental health struggles, which led to your international retirement in 2019. Seven years on, are cricketers more equipped to deal with these issues?

Yeah, definitely better. Earlier, less people spoke about it, so you didn't know what you had. You didn't know that what you were dealing with was a thing. I only learnt once I spoke out that other people were going through the same stuff. It's ADHD (attention deficit hyperactivity disorder) that I have. I've relaxed about it now, whereas earlier I was so stressed that I was feeling this way.

The girls now have access to so much. It needed me to stop playing cricket and go into hypnotherapy, and that was the best thing for me.

When you were playing, Australia and England were the two dominant sides. New Zealand won the 2024 T20 World Cup, and India won the 2025 ODI World Cup. Is women's cricket more competitive than ever before?

Absolutely. It's exciting. The franchise leagues have then opened that up. It's scary to think where India will be in five years' time because of the exposure they are getting. I'm so glad now that you can look at a World Cup and say I don't know which team is going to win – South Africa, India, England, Australia or New Zealand. That's cool.

Transport unions put off 'Bengaluru Chalo' protest

The agitation, which was scheduled for today, will now be held on January 30 following the death of veteran trade union leader H.V. Anantha Subbarao on Wednesday

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

The proposed 'Bengaluru Chalo' protest by transport union workers has been postponed to January 30, following the death of veteran trade union leader H.V. Anantha Subbarao on Wednesday. The protest was scheduled for Thursday.

Mr. Rao, a towering figure in the labour movement with over six decades of experience in organising transport and public sector workers, was closely associated with the Joint Action Committee of Trade Unions that had called for the protest.

The 'Bengaluru Chalo' protest was called by the Joint Action Committee of Trade Unions of State Transport Corporations to highlight what unions described as prolonged neglect of wage and service-related issues affecting employees of the four State-run transport undertakings. FILE PHOTO

Demands

The 'Bengaluru Chalo' protest was called by the Joint Action Committee of Trade Unions of State Transport Corporations to highlight what unions described as prolonged neglect of wage and service-related issues affecting employees of the four State-run transport undertakings. Central to the demands was the non-payment of 38 months of salary arrears resulting from a delayed wage revision that was due from January 1, 2020, but was implemented only from March 1, 2023.

The union representatives have argued that the delay has caused significant financial distress to employees, particularly drivers and conductors, who continued working through the pandemic and its aftermath without revised pay.

Wage settlement

In addition to arrears, the unions have been pressing for the implementation of a fresh four-year wage settlement from January 1, 2024, which they said was long overdue. They have also raised concerns over stagnating service conditions, rising workload, staff shortages and what they described as a lack of meaningful dialogue with the government on structural issues facing the transport corporations.

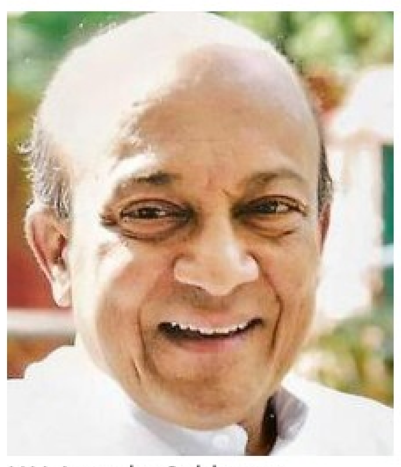
Veteran trade union leader Anantha Subbarao passes away

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Veteran trade union leader H.V. Anantha Subbarao, 84, passed away here on Wednesday following cardiac arrest. He was well-known for his long years of work with the State-owned road transport corporation.

He is survived by his wife Nagaratna and two daughters. One of the longest serving general secretaries of the All India Trade Union Congress (AITUC), Karnataka unit, he held the post between 1983 and 2015 before taking over as the president of AITUC (2015-2026). It was only a few weeks ago that he had stepped down and handed over the reins to Babu Mathew.

Subbarao entered the trade union movement in the 1960s, inspired by Marxism and Communist ideology. He was the founding general secretary of LIC Employees' Union in 1963, and served as the AITUC vice-president between 1971 and 1983. He also unsuccessfully contested the Assembly elections from Rajajinagar in 1999 on the Communist Party of India (CPI) ticket.



H.V. Anantha Subbarao

Since the '60s

Known for his skill in negotiating with the government, Subbarao had strived for workers' welfare in the State-owned road transport corporation for over five decades. He led the KSRTC Staff and Workers' Union through the years, including the tough years when the government, despite opposition, bifurcated the RTCs.

"He was jailed on numerous occasions during the strike action of transport workers. With his uncompromising stance, Subbarao was successful in building bridges between the union and Transport Department in Karnataka. He was a committed leader of the CPI throughout his life," said a note from the AITUC.

"He travelled across Karnataka, addressed gate meetings of the KSRTC drivers, conductors and mechanical staff. Through his campaign, a secret ballot was finally held after a long struggle in 1987 after which the KSRTC Staff and Workers' Federation was recognised as the trade union with which the management would deal," recalled Prof. Mathew, a long-time associate of the veteran leader.

Industrial unions too

The AITUC, under his leadership, managed to expand its footprints into new areas of the workforce such as scheme workers and public transport. According to the AITUC, he led various industrial unions, including ITC and Mico Bosch.

The Centre of Trade Unions (CITU) and other trade unions condoled the passing away of Subbarao. Transport Minister Ramalinga Reddy said, "I knew him well since 2013 when I first became the Transport Minister. He was reasonable in his negotiations. He firmly believed that the State-owned organisation should grow and workers should receive justice as well."

Task force to monitor road-widening projects

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Greater Bengaluru Authority Chief Commissioner M. Maheshwar Rao on Wednesday ordered the formation of a dedicated task forces in all five city corporations to monitor road-widening projects and check unauthorised construction activities.

Mr. Rao pointed out the need to resolve operational challenges that arise during the implementation of works across the five city corporations.

Facial recognition attendance

The GBA has also introduced a facial recognition-based attendance system for pourakarmikas across the city. The implementation is under way in all city corporations, with progress in the Central City Corporation.

The officials have been instructed to ensure the system is fully operational across the GBA area within the next two weeks.

The GBA chief also directed the officials to prepare a list of ongoing Railway Department projects for review, followed by a meeting with the GBA to expedite progress. During the review meeting, the Bengaluru Water Supply and Sewerage Board (BWSSB) was asked to ensure adequate water supply for firefighting, install five-lakh-litre capacity water tanks in select areas, and establish a Fire Control Room within the GBA.

He also asked the officials to immediately commence widening at Tannery Road, completion of junction development under the 'Suraksha-75' project, initiation of multi-level car parking works and standardisation of signboard designs.

Coalition urges CEO to suspend SIR in State till Supreme Court verdict

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Members of the coalition 'My Vote, My Right' submitted a memorandum to V. Anbukumar, Chief Electoral Officer, Karnataka, raising concerns about the ongoing mapping exercise, taking place in preparation for the Special Intensive Revision (SIR).

The letter has demanded that the rolling out of SIR in the State be suspended until the Supreme Court delivers a verdict on the various pending cases challenging the SIR.

Hasty, opaque manner

The members alleged that the mapping exercise is being conducted in a hasty and opaque manner, with Booth Level Officials (BLOs) facing extreme pressure to meet targets within unrealistic deadlines.

"The BLOs have received no written instructions, special training, guidelines or circulars specifying how the mapping of voter rolls must be done. We learnt that the only communication they were given were instructional videos shared in WhatsApp groups made for the coordination between the BLOs. Such a significant exercise which will undoubtedly affect lakhs of voters of Karnataka cannot be conducted without clear written protocols and guidelines from the State's election authorities. The absence of clearly defined procedures is leading to misuse of power, arbitrariness and inaccuracies in the implementation of the mapping exercise," the letter read.

The coalition has urged the CEO to take measures to publicise information about the mapping of the electoral rolls.

'Flawed'

It also termed the mapping rationale "flawed", noting that it would disenfranchise lakhs of women and marginalised communities.

Other concerns included lack of measures to generate awareness for the public regarding the mapping exercise. The coalition urged the CEO to take measures to publicise information about the mapping of the electoral rolls and carry out a wider campaign with the help of the local bodies and the media to ensure that all the genuine voters are included in the mapping exercise.

The letter also suggested adding "Relationship" option instead of "Progeny" on the Mapping App, thereby allowing the daughter-in-law to be included in the family.

Two arrested for inter-State car theft; nine cars and a two-wheeler recovered

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

The Govindpura police have arrested two persons, including one accused from outside Karnataka, in connection with a car theft racket, and recovered nine cars and one two-wheeler worth ₹2.31 crore.

The case came to light following a complaint lodged at the Govindpura police station on January 4 by a resident of K.G. Halli. The complainant stated that his two-wheeler was stolen. Based on the complaint, a case was registered and police launched an investigation. Acting on credible information, police traced and arrested Syed Nizam, 37, a car dealer from Pulakeshi Nagar on January 5, near an Indira Canteen, along with the stolen two-wheeler.

During interrogation, the accused reportedly confessed to his involvement in vehicle theft. He confessed to stealing cars and selling them with the help of an associate based in Delhi. The accused was produced in court, which remanded him to 19 days of police custody. Sustained interrogation led police to identify and trace the second accused Mohammed Muzaffar, 26, a Delhi-based associate, who was arrested on January 14, in Hyderabad.

Further investigation led to the recovery of nine stolen cars parked at various locations, including HBR Layout, Ravindra Garden and in vacant plots near residential layouts. The total value of the recovered vehicles is estimated at ₹2.3 crore.

Forged documents

The accused claimed to stealing high-end cars in Delhi, driving to Bengaluru and selling them in Hydrabad with forged documents.

Police said the accused were involved in stealing vehicles from Bengaluru and disposing of them through inter-State networks. Further investigation is under way to trace additional links in the racket.

Biker who misbehaved with car driver over road rage arrested

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

The Commercial Street police on Tuesday arrested a 25-year-old man for harassing and abusing a car driver allegedly over a road rage incident.

Based on the complaint, the police arrested the accused, Syed Sameer, a resident of Yarab Nagar in Banashankari. Sameer worked as a daily wage labourer, the police said.

According to the police, on January 26 around 1.30 p.m., near Halasuru Road Cross, Sameer, who was riding a scooter, jumped the signal and rode close to the car driven by Praveen M.N., 43, from Halasuru. When Praveen advised him to ride carefully, Sameer responded, "My vehicle, my road, I will drive as I please," he reportedly said. When Praveen told him to repeat the same thing before the police, Sameer allegedly said, "Who police? Why should I come? Who are you to ask?" When Praveen moved away, Sameer allegedly followed him and waylaid his car near Manipal Centre and began abusing him and assaulted him.

Video goes viral

The video of the assault captured by Praveen went viral on social media. The police then arrested Sameer, who apologised for his actions in a video released later.

Eight-laser 3D printer could change how metal parts are made

Rishita Khanna
BENGALURU

A Bengaluru-based company has developed a metal 3D printing system that can mass-produce high-precision metal parts at nearly half the cost and in a fraction of the time taken by existing machines.

The system can be used not just to design components but to actually manufacture them at scale for sectors such as aerospace and defence.

Until now, metal 3D printing across India was largely limited to testing designs or producing small batches, as the process was too slow and expensive for large-scale manufacturing. The new system, called the iFusion Infinity Series, aims to address this by changing how metal 3D printing can be used on factory floors, moving it from experimental technology to a dependable manufacturing process.

The system can be used not just to design components but to actually manufacture them at scale for sectors such as aerospace and defence. SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT

The Metal 3D printing, though existed, its use has been restricted. Companies relied on it to make prototypes or a handful of complex parts, after which production would shift back to conventional manufacturing methods such as casting or machining. This was mainly because existing metal printers worked with one or two lasers, making the printing process extremely slow. A single production job could take several weeks to complete, driving up costs.

This system tackles this problem by allowing multiple lasers to work on the same metal part at the same time. According to the company, tasks that earlier required 400 to 650 hours on conventional dual-laser machines can now be completed in about 140 to 190 hours.

Applications

The product supports a wide range of industrial metals, including titanium, nickel-based superalloys, stainless steel, maraging steel, cobalt chrome, and copper alloys. These materials are commonly used in aircraft components, defence equipment, energy systems, automotive parts, and precision tooling.

"The biggest shift is predictability. With shorter and stable build cycles, manufacturers can plan production schedules and calculate costs. This allows metal 3D printing to function like a regular production machine rather than a specialised testing tool," Sridhar Balaram, founder and managing director, CEO, Intech Additive Solutions, said.

One of the biggest challenges, Mr. Balaram said, in scaling metal 3D printing is consistency. While existing printers can produce highly accurate parts, maintaining the same quality across dozens or hundreds of builds is difficult. Over time, variations in heat, laser performance, and powder spreading can lead to differences between parts.

He added that this product has been designed to address this issue. Each of its eight lasers is calibrated to deliver identical energy, while the software continuously manages how the lasers overlap and interact. This ensures that a component printed in one corner of the build plate behaves the same way as one printed elsewhere.

The cost has been another major barrier to large-scale metal 3D printing. The company claims that its new system can reduce the cost per part by 35% to 50% compared to the existing dual-laser machines, depending on the geometry and batch size.

This reduction, Mr. Balaram pointed out, does not come from cheaper materials, but from higher throughput and better utilisation.

"Faster builds mean the same machine can produce many more parts each year, spreading fixed costs such as machine time, manpower, and facility overheads across a larger output. As a result, parts that earlier made economic sense only in small numbers can now be produced in much larger volumes," he added.

Can international patent law handle a permanent presence in space?

Patent law rests on the principle of territoriality: patent holders have exclusive rights within specific jurisdictions, and authorities assess infringement based on locations; innovations on earth take place within areas subject to singular legal authority, but unbounded outer space destabilises this logic

Shrawani Shagun

Ownership question: An artist's illustration of a future Artemis Base Camp operated by NASA. NASA

Space stations, lunar bases, and Mars missions have moved from humans' imagination to engineering reality. In these environments, innovation emerges through collaboration rather than isolation.

Living on the moon or Mars will depend on continuous technological innovation, including on systems that extract water, generate energy and recycle waste and which can adapt to harsh and unpredictable conditions. Innovation in space is the condition for survival, and isn't optional.

Longer habitation means shared habitats, shared infrastructure, and multinational crews working together over extended periods. Scientists, engineers, and technicians from different jurisdictions have to collaborate closely, refining technologies in real time as operational needs evolve.

And when such innovation takes place beyond Earth, a simple question arises: who owns it? Which patent system governs an invention created in a place where no state may claim sovereignty?

These questions expose a growing mismatch between the realities of sustainable human presence in space and intellectual property law, which remains built around territorial boundaries that space itself does not recognise.

Territorial foundations

Patent law rests on the principle of territoriality. Exclusive rights are granted to patent holders within specific jurisdictions, and authorities assess infringement by locating where acts such as making, using or selling have occurred. On the earth, this framework works because innovation takes place within geographically bounded spaces subject to a singular legal authority.

Outer space destabilises this logic. International space law prohibits national sovereignty over celestial bodies yet it allows states to retain jurisdiction and control over objects registered under their authority in space. Article VIII of the Outer Space Treaty and the Registration Convention together stipulate that legal jurisdiction attaches to the state of registry of a space object, not to the physical location where activities occur.

In practice, this means an invention developed aboard a registered space object — e.g. a national space station — is treated as having occurred within the legal territory of the registering state (i.e. that nation), even when the activity takes place on the moon or in orbit. This jurisdiction-by-registration approach has become the default mechanism through which spacefaring states have extended domestic patent law into outer space.

The International Space Station (ISS) demonstrates how this model can function in a tightly controlled setting. It consists of multiple modules, each provided by a participating country. Article 21 of the ISS Intergovernmental Agreement allocates jurisdiction module by module, treating each segment as the territory of its partner state for purposes including intellectual property. Because the ISS is a static, carefully segmented facility, this arrangement has remained workable.

However, this presumes clear structural boundaries, stable installations, and nationally identifiable zones of activity. Permanently inhabited lunar or planetary bases may not operate in such conditions. Consider a lunar settlement extracting water ice near the moon's south pole. One team operates autonomous drilling robots, another refines extraction algorithms using shared data, while life-support engineers adapt the process to local power and temperature constraints. The components can be built on the earth, the software updated remotely, and robots operate across multiple platforms. When such a system is incrementally refined by multinational teams on shared infrastructure, it's not clear where the legally relevant act of invention occurs or which jurisdiction should govern it.

In these settings, the territorial anchors that patent law depends on become weaker. Identical technological activity may fall within patent jurisdiction or outside it entirely, depending solely on registration choices rather than on substantive contribution, operational control or the location of innovation. In such contexts, registration no longer reflects how innovation actually occurs.

Non-appropriation principle

These challenges intersect with the foundational principles of international space law. Article I of the Outer Space Treaty frames outer space as a domain to be explored and used for the benefit of all humankind. Article II reinforces this vision by prohibiting any form of national appropriation of celestial bodies, including the moon.

While patents don't amount to territorial claims, they do confer exclusive control over technologies that may be essential for survival or exploration in space. In permanently inhabited environments, where access to water and energy could depend on patented technologies, such exclusivity carries real structural consequences.

International space law prohibits national sovereignty over celestial bodies yet it allows states to retain jurisdiction and control over objects registered under their authority in space

This raises an unresolved question: at what point does patent-based exclusivity begin to operate as de facto exclusion in a domain that international law insists must remain accessible?

The concern is that fragmented enforcement driven solely by registration could indirectly constrain the freedom to explore and use space. If access to a patented life-support process or resource-extraction technique depends on the registry of a particular platform, operators on other platforms may be legally barred from using or modifying technologies essential to survival or mission continuity, even in non-competitive settings.

Article 5 of the Paris Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property is concerned with the doctrine of temporary presence. It limits patent enforcement in the public interest to ensure patented articles in transit are not treated as infringing. On the earth, this provision preserves freedom of transport across borders.

Whether this doctrine applies to space objects, however, remains unclear. Does temporary presence cover patented equipment launched through foreign territory, docked at multinational space stations or operated onboard platforms registered to another state? No treaty or authoritative interpretation provides an answer.

Registration-based jurisdiction also creates powerful incentives for strategic behaviour. Technologies can be developed in states with strong patent protection but deployed onboard space objects registered in jurisdictions with weaker enforcement, allowing innovation to slip beyond the reach of the legal system that enabled it.

This is not unlike the use of flags of convenience in maritime operations — and it risks hollowing out patent protection through regulatory arbitrage rather than genuine innovation.

Further, while more than 110 states are parties to the Outer Space Treaty, only a few shape how registration interacts with patent law, producing a system that is global in form but uneven in practice. Operational coordination mechanisms, such as those under the NASA Artemis Accords, could reduce interference. But coordination is also not jurisdiction, meaning they can't resolve questions of ownership and enforcement in permanently inhabited space environments.

The challenge of patent protection in outer space is not a marginal legal puzzle. It reflects a structural mismatch between legal regimes designed for territorially bounded activity and environments defined by shared infrastructure and jurisdictional fragmentation.

International institutions have begun to acknowledge these tensions, and proposals for specialised space-related IP mechanisms are emerging. But coordination remains limited and uneven. Most states remain rule-takers rather than rule-makers in the evolving legal architecture of space innovation.

Study detects elusive helium gas leaks with sound waves

Vasudevan Mukunth

Helium is famous for making balloons float, voices squeak, and as a critical resource for MRI machines and aerospace engineering. Helium is expensive and scarce, finding leaks quickly is essential, but that's easier said than done because helium is also chemically inert and sensors, which usually rely on chemical reactors, have a tough time detecting it.

In a new study, researchers from Nanjing University in China have reported a sensor that uses sound waves instead of chemistry to 'hear' helium leaks. The study paper was published in the December 2025 issue of Applied Physics Letters.

Most gas sensors work like a sponge that reacts when it touches a particular liquid. They work by absorbing gas or using chemical reactions to change an electrical signal. Since helium is chemically stable, it doesn't react with these sensitive coatings. And while existing methods like mass spectrometry can detect helium, they're often bulky and expensive.

The study saw researchers use sensors that can trap sound using a particular geometric pattern called a Kagome lattice

In the new study, the researchers took a different approach. They designed a sensor based on acoustic topological materials. These are structures that can trap sound using a particular geometric pattern called a Kagome lattice.

The Kagome lattice is made of interlaced triangles and hexagons. In their specific design, the researchers used rigid cylinders connected by small tubes, creating an effect called topological corner states. Essentially, sound waves introduced into the structure get trapped at the three corners of the triangle and are unable to escape into the middle or from the sides. Sound travels at different speeds through different gases. When helium leaks into the sensor and mixes with the air inside, it changes the speed at which sound waves travel through the tubes. This change in speed changes the frequency (or pitch) of the trapped sound at the corners. So by measuring this shift in frequency, the sensor can instantly calculate the concentration of helium present.

The acoustic approach offers several advantages over traditional chemical sensors. Because it doesn't rely on delicate chemical coatings, the sensor is incredibly tough. It works well in temperatures ranging from a comfortable 26° C to a freezing -34° C. It also ignores changes in humidity and thus doesn't need to be constantly recalibrated like other sensors. The topological nature of the sensor means its ability to trap sound is very stable. The researchers found that they could drill large holes in the sides of the cylinders to let gas in faster and the sound trap still worked well. This means the sensor can detect leaks rapidly as the gas doesn't have to seep in slowly.

And because the sensor is a triangle with three distinct corners, it can do more than just say whether helium is present in the air. By comparing the timing of the signals at each of the three corners, the sensor can triangulate the direction the gas is coming from. If the frequency shifts at corner 1 before corner 3, for instance, it would mean the leak is closer to corner 1.

According to the research, this device could make it much easier and cheaper to protect valuable helium supplies in industries ranging from medicine to space exploration.

‘Draft wage rules mirror Centre’s framework’

Labour unions argue that it establishes low wages, weakens enforcement and leaves most workers outside its effective coverage

Rishita Khanna
BENGALURU

Projected as a step towards universal wage protection, the Karnataka’s draft Code on Wages Rules largely mirrors the Centre’s framework, one that labour union members argued that it establishes low wages, weakens enforcement and leaves most workers outside its effective coverage.

The draft, they argued, reflects the limited scope States have to correct structural flaws embedded in a centrally-designed law and may end up depressing wages rather than protecting them.

Released on January 27, the draft Code on Wages (Karnataka) Rules lays down procedures for fixing and enforcing minimum wages in the State. FILE PHOTO

Released on January 27, the draft Code on Wages (Karnataka) Rules lay down procedures for fixing and enforcing minimum wages in the State. However, unions said they retain key features of the central Code, including discretionary floor wage fixation, a narrowed definition of wages and diluted enforcement mechanisms.

The Code on Wages, 2019, subsumed four labour laws- relating to minimum wages, payment of wages, bonuses and equal remuneration- into a single legislation. The Union government has pitched it as a reform to simplify compliance, ensure uniformity across States and extend wage protection to all workers, with the Karnataka’s draft rules meant to operationalise the law.

However, Satyanand Mukund, State secretary of the All India Trade Union Congress, said the Code effectively excludes over 90% of India’s workforce, particularly informal, women and domestic workers.

He argued that digital compliance systems and employer self-reporting disadvantage workers who lack documentation, bargaining power and access to grievance redressal.

The Karnataka draft details the classification of workers by skill level and zones- metropolitan, non-metropolitan and rural- and bases wage calculations on the needs of a standard working-class family, including food, clothing, housing, education and medical expenses. It also mandates annual dearness allowance (DA) revision linked to inflation.

The labour unions, however, said the draft has left little room for the State to address long-standing concerns. Maitreyi Krishnan of the All India Central Council of Trade Unions (AICCTU) termed the codes “fundamentally anti-worker” and argued that the State should have resisted implementing them, especially since even the Congress has publicly criticised the codes.

She also flagged the treatment of housing costs, arguing that the assumptions used bear little resemblance to real rental or housing expenses.

Floor wage issues

A key concern remains the floor wage fixed by the Union government, below which States cannot go. While consultation is required, the Code does not prescribe a clear methodology or mandate periodic revision, unlike minimum wages. The DA revision is also not required for the floor wage, raising concerns that it may not keep pace with inflation, Mr. Mukund said, warning that the floor wage often becomes the default benchmark, particularly in fiscally stressed States, pushing wages downward. The union members further pointed out that the Code also removes the earlier system of scheduled employment, under which wages were fixed occupation-wise based on sector-specific risks and conditions. Under the new framework, wages are largely determined by skill and geography.

Definition of ‘wages’

Further, the uniform definition of “wages” excludes components such as house rent allowance, bonuses, overtime and employer provident fund contributions, subject to a 50% cap. Mr. Mukund said this enables employers to restructure pay to keep statutory wages low, reducing linked benefits such as social security and maternity entitlements.

The subsuming of the Equal Remuneration Act, 1976, into the Wage Code has raised concerns around gender justice. While the Code uses gender-neutral language, the union members argued it removes a standalone law that explicitly addressed gender-based wage discrimination.

Police and prison officials face action for attempting to see Darshan in prison

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Director-General of Prisons and Correctional Services Alok Kumar has ordered disciplinary action against prison staff and police constables following an incident involving an attempt to see film actor Darshan inside the prison.

According to officials, a group of constables from the Yelahanka police station had expressed their wish to meet Darshan when they came to the prison to hand over an accused in another case. One of the constables allegedly requested jail warder Prabhushankar Chauhan to show them Darshan on Saturday.

Taking strong exception to the incident, which amounts to serious misconduct, Mr. Kumar ordered the transfer of warder Prabhushankar Chauhan to Chamarajanagar district prison as punishment and issued a charge memo to a senior head warder, seeking an explanation for his role in the incident.

Mr. Kumar also directed the Deputy Commissioner of Police (North-East Division) to conduct an inquiry and initiate appropriate action against the constables involved. Though the constables did not directly meet Darshan, the probe revealed that they went near his cell to catch a glimpse of the actor.

The Director-General visited the prison and conducted a detailed inquiry into the matter.

In a separate incident, another jail staff member was issued a charge memo for dereliction of duty. The staff member, identified as Sannakkanavar, was assigned to conduct the second-round security check but was found sitting without inspecting the baggage.

The lapse was detected by Mr. Kumar through the surveillance monitoring system installed at the prison headquarters.

The Amruthahalli police have busted an inter-State drug trafficking racket and arrested 10 persons in Bengaluru. They have seized narcotic substances, including hydro ganja, LSD strips, MDMA and charas, worth ₹4 crore.

Acting on a tip-off received on January 19, the police learnt that a group of persons were illegally selling narcotic substances near the Jakkur railway track in the limits of the Amruthahalli police station. A police team apprehended four persons, including suspects from outside Karnataka. The police seized 1 kg hydro ganja, 50 gm of MDMA, 500 gm of charas, 8 kg of ganja, and six mobile phones from them, and a case was registered under the Narcotic Drugs and Psycotropic Substances (NDPS) Act was registered on January 20. The four accused were produced in court and remanded in police custody for eight days.

Police have busted the network of mules and peddlers while efforts are on to trace and arrest the leader of the gang, says Seemant Kumar Singh

Further investigation led to the arrest of five more accused on the same day near Kanakapura Road. Based on information, the police conducted another operation on January 21 on the GKVK campus, which resulted in the seizure of 2 kg of hydro ganja, one car, eight mobile phones, and ₹36,000 in cash. The accused were produced in court and were remanded in police custody for seven days.

On January 22, the police arrested another accused near Satellite Bus Stand on Mysuru Road, and seized 500 LSD strips and 2 kg of ganja.

With the arrest of all 10 accused, the total seizure amounts to 3 kg of hydro ganja, 50 grams MDMA, 500 grams, charas, 500 LSD strips, 10 kg ganja, two cars, 14 mobile phones, and ₹36,000 in cash.

Sourced from Thailand

On January 23, seven accused were produced in court, followed by the remaining three on January 27. Investigations revealed that the accused sourced hydro ganja from Thailand through mules, who were offered ₹30,000 towards travel expenses, along with pocket money, to transport the contraband concealed in check-in baggage. The mules were allegedly assured a ₹2 lakh bonus upon successful delivery.

The police said the mules, working as mechanics, drivers, students and engineering graduates, were identified at the airport arrival area by receivers using photographs shared through WhatsApp. The mules and receivers were not personally acquainted but operated as part of a drug network.

The drugs were later distributed to local peddlers who operated within strictly defined territories. Any attempt to cross into another peddler’s area often led to violent clashes, with two peddlers sustaining injuries in such incidents, the police said.

Police Commissioner Seemant Kumar Singh said police have busted the network of mules and peddlers while efforts are on to trace and arrest the leader of the gang.

MP seeks removal of savings clause from draft BMLTA Rules

Press Trust of India
BENGALURU

MP for Bengaluru South Tejasvi Surya on Wednesday submitted formal objections to the draft Bengaluru Metropolitan Land Transport Authority (BMLTA) Rules, 2025, and has sought the removal of a savings clause.

He said the rules introduced a savings clause under Rule 24.

“This provision exempts previously announced large-scale infrastructure projects from requiring approval of the BMLTA, thereby potentially allowing proposals such as the tunnel road project to be deemed approved without institutional scrutiny,” he added.

Can the ED file writ petitions before Courts?

What high-profile case is at the centre of the challenge against the Enforcement Directorate's jurisdiction? What has been the Kerala government's defence? Why is the outcome of this case significant for the balance of power between Central and State authorities in India?

EXPLAINER

Aaratrika Bhaumik

The story so far:

On January 20, the Supreme Court agreed to examine whether the Enforcement Directorate (ED) is entitled to invoke the writ jurisdiction of constitutional courts to seek relief. A Bench comprising Justices Dipankar Datta and Satish Chandra Sharma admitted separate petitions filed by the Kerala and Tamil Nadu governments challenging a Kerala High Court ruling that upheld the agency's right to do so. Taking note of the substantial question of law raised by the Opposition-ruled States, the Bench directed that the matter be listed for hearing after four weeks.

When can courts issue writs?

In India, the Supreme Court is vested with the power to issue prerogative writs under Article 32 of the Constitution, while High Courts exercise a similar jurisdiction under Article 226. These writs trace their origins to English common law, where they evolved as extraordinary remedies issued by the sovereign in situations where ordinary legal remedies were unavailable or ineffective.

The Constitution recognises five such writs – habeas corpus (to secure the release of a person from unlawful detention), mandamus (to compel a public authority to perform a statutory or public duty), prohibition (to restrain a lower court or tribunal from acting beyond its authority), certiorari (to quash an order of a lower court or tribunal for lack of jurisdiction or illegality), and quo warranto (to question the legality of a person's claim to a public office).

While Article 32 enables the Supreme Court to issue writs primarily for the enforcement of fundamental rights, Article 226 vests High Courts with broader authority, allowing them to issue writs not only for enforcing fundamental rights but also "for any other purpose", including the enforcement of legal rights and the review of administrative action. However, the grant of such writs is discretionary, and courts may decline relief where an effective alternative remedy is already available.

Further, under Article 361 of the Constitution, a writ of mandamus cannot be issued against the President or the Governor of a State with respect to the exercise and performance of the powers and duties of their office. A writ also does not ordinarily lie against private individuals or bodies, except in cases where the state is alleged to have acted in collusion with a private party in violation of constitutional or statutory provisions.

Why did Kerala approach the SC?

The dispute traces its origin to a September 26, 2025 ruling of a Division Bench of the Kerala High Court, which held that the ED, established by the Union government under Section 36 of the Foreign Exchange Management Act, 1999 (1999 Act) pursuant to a June 2000 notification, is a statutory body entitled to invoke the writ jurisdiction of High Courts under Article 226 of the Constitution.

The ruling arose from a writ petition filed by the ED challenging the Kerala government's decision to constitute a Commission of Inquiry (CoI) in connection with the diplomatic gold smuggling case. The case relates to the seizure of 30 kg of gold, valued at ₹14.82 crore, from diplomatic baggage arriving from the United Arab Emirates at the Thiruvananthapuram International Airport on July 5, 2020. The National Investigation Agency subsequently registered a case under the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act, 1967, alongside parallel proceedings initiated by the ED under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 (PMLA).

The case later emerged as a flashpoint between the Centre and the State after Swapna Prabha Suresh, the prime accused, released an audio clip alleging that ED officials had coerced her into implicating persons holding high office in the State. Similar allegations were subsequently made in a letter by a co-accused. Acting on these allegations, the Pinarayi Vijayan government had tasked the inquiry commission to probe if there was a conspiracy afoot against the State's leaders and, if so, to unearth the identity of those behind the plot.

The ED, thereafter, through its Deputy Director, approached the High Court challenging the May 7, 2021, notification constituting the CoI. It sought a writ of mandamus to call for the relevant records and a writ of certiorari to quash the notification on the ground that it was wholly without jurisdiction and contrary to law.

However, the Kerala government questioned the ED's locus to maintain a writ petition, contending that it is merely a department of the Union government and not a juristic person or body corporate capable of suing or being sued. It further argued that the agency's only available remedy lay under Article 131 of the Constitution, which vests the Supreme Court with exclusive jurisdiction to adjudicate disputes between the Centre and the States. To buttress its contention, the State also relied on the Supreme Court's 2003 ruling in Chief Conservator of Forests, Government of Andhra Pradesh versus Collector, which had deprecated the practice of Centre and State governments filing writ petitions against each other before High Courts.

What did the High Court rule?

In August 2021, a single judge of the High Court rejected the State government's objection to the maintainability of the ED's writ petition, observing that ED officers exercise statutory powers and that the agency cannot be treated as merely a department of the Union government. The State's appeal against this decision was dismissed by a Division Bench in its September 2025 ruling.

The Bench, comprising Justices Sushrut Arvind Dharmadhikari and Syam Kumar V.M., reiterated that the ED is a statutory body and that its officers are designated statutory authorities under Sections 48 and 49 of the PMLA. Rejecting the State's contention that the agency lacked juristic personality and the capacity to sue, the Bench observed that such an objection amounted to a "trivial defect" and was "a matter of form and not substance", which could not defeat the ED's statutory right to seek recourse under Article 226 of the Constitution.

What have Kerala and Tamil Nadu argued before the Supreme Court?

In its appeal before the top court, the Kerala government objected to the High Court's characterisation of its challenge to the maintainability of the ED's writ petition as a "trivial defect". It pointed out that the Supreme Court, in Chief Conservator of Forests, had held that the capacity of a legal entity – natural or artificial – to sue or be sued is a matter of considerable importance and that proceedings would fail if the necessary party lacked such capacity.

The State further contended that the Deputy Director of the ED, being only an officer and not a juristic person, lacked the locus to file a writ petition. "Hence, he also could not have filed a writ petition. Therefore, the finding of the High Court that the Deputy Director of Enforcement has locus standi to institute the writ petition is erroneous... Neither the provisions of the 1999 Act nor the PMLA confer any legal personality on the ED so as to entitle it to be treated as a juristic person competent to sue," the petition stated. Tamil Nadu, supporting Kerala's challenge, submitted that it had been placed in nearly identical circumstances. It alleged that the ED had indulged in a "gross and blatant abuse of the process of law" by filing a writ petition before the Madras High Court in connection with proceedings relating to alleged illegal mining in the State. In a separate appeal before the Supreme Court, Tamil Nadu argued that the Kerala High Court's ruling had "emboldened the ED to venture a similar line of action" before the Madras High Court in its case.

What are the possible implications?

"It is contested whether the ED can be placed on the same footing as statutory bodies such as the Securities and Exchange Board of India or the Reserve Bank of India, which are juristic entities with perpetual succession and an express statutory capacity to sue and be sued", Alok Prasanna Kumar, co-founder of the Vidhi Centre for Legal Policy, told The Hindu. He noted that the ED is widely regarded as an instrumentality of the Union government, prosecuting cases on its behalf rather than functioning as an autonomous legal entity. Mr. Kumar further pointed out that the ED does not have any independent legal rights vis-à-vis State governments. "State governments do not owe any 'public duty' to the ED that could justify the issuance of a writ of mandamus or certiorari against them. At best, the allegation may be that a State has encroached upon the powers of the ED as an arm of the Union government. Such a claim would have to be pursued as a Centre-State dispute under Article 131 of the Constitution, over which the Supreme Court has exclusive jurisdiction", he said.

THE GIST

State bars in-patient care by govt. doctors in private practice

The government noted that treatment of in-patients in private facilities involves longer clinical engagement, which may adversely affect the delivery of services in government hospitals

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

The State government has issued guidelines prohibiting government doctors from treating in-patients in private hospitals as part of their private practice, citing concerns over disruption of services in public hospitals and lapses in continuity of care for admitted patients. In an order issued on Wednesday, the State Health Department said that while existing government instructions allow private practice by government doctors, such practice must not interfere with official duties. The government noted that treatment of in-patients in private facilities necessarily involves longer clinical engagement, which may "adversely affect" the delivery of services in government hospitals.

Flagged by Lokayukta

The clarification follows observations by statutory authorities, including the Lokayukta, which had highlighted instances where neglect of patients in public hospitals had been linked to doctors attending to private in-patients. In some cases, authorities had flagged deaths of patients and attributed the lapses to diversion of time and supervision. The Karnataka Administrative Reforms Commission had also recommended the regulation of private practice to ensure priority to public service, particularly in districts with staff shortages.

The department additionally pointed to practices in other States such as Kerala, where private practice by government doctors is limited to out-patient consultations and permitted under strict conditions.

OPD consultation only

Under the latest clarification, private practice by government doctors will be restricted to out-patient consultations (OPD) only.

Such practice must be undertaken outside government duty hours and in a single private clinic or hospital, the details of which must be formally declared to the government.

The government reiterated that private practice must not hamper regular duties and attendance.

Legal provisions

Any violation of these conditions will be treated as misconduct and draw disciplinary action under the Karnataka Civil Services Rules, in addition to other legal provisions.

Any violation of these conditions will be treated as misconduct and draw disciplinary action

The clarification takes immediate effect and is to be read with all existing government orders on private practice.

Clear boundaries

According to officials, the need to set clearer boundaries around private practice has been under discussion for several months in light of complaints from district hospitals and supervisory bodies about workload diversion, fragmentation in patient supervision, and delayed ward rounds.

While private practice has been permitted in Karnataka for decades, the State has periodically reviewed the norms, particularly after episodes that raised questions about patient care in government facilities.

The latest order is expected to bring additional compliance requirements for government doctors who currently consult at multiple private facilities.

Protest over delayed grants for special schools

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

A large number of special school teachers and non-teaching staff gathered at Freedom Park in the heart of the city on Wednesday to stage a protest against delays in granting funds meant to support the education and care of children with disabilities. The State government had launched the Child-Centric Scheme for Special Schools to support the education and care of children with disabilities. Under the scheme, the government runs four special schools across the State and funds 180 special schools managed by NGOs, according to the protesters.

"This scheme provides financial assistance of ₹9,000 a child per month for 10 months in a year through these schools to ensure minimum standards in teaching, care, and support services. It also provides grants covering salaries for special school teachers and non-teaching staff, special learning materials, and school operational costs," said Sanjay Sabarad, manager of Sadbhavana Special School, Bengaluru.

They alleged delays in the release of funds under the scheme and limited revisions in salaries over the years. The salary of special school teachers was ₹13,500 per month in 2014-15, which was raised to ₹20,250 per month from 2022 onwards, the Karnataka State Special School Teachers' and Non-Teaching Staff Association said in a statement.

They teachers alleged that the revision was not aligned with inflation, while the government staff were paid nearly three times more for similar work.

Fair pay

They termed this disparity unfair and demanded fair pay. "It is very difficult to run our households on ₹20,000 a month, and we demand a salary increase based on current inflation," said Chandrika K.M. of Jnana Vikasa Deaf & Dumb Special Residential School, Mandya. They demanded an immediate revision of salaries and timely release of funds.

Additionally, the NGOs demanded a 40% increase in grants to ensure minimum standards are maintained. Several NGOs expressed concern over delays in grants and their impact on school operations.

"I have been running my school for over six years, and it is difficult to manage when grants are released in four instalments a year. Two instalments would save time. Further, the current grants are insufficient, and teachers are unwilling to work for such low salaries," said Mr. Sabarad.

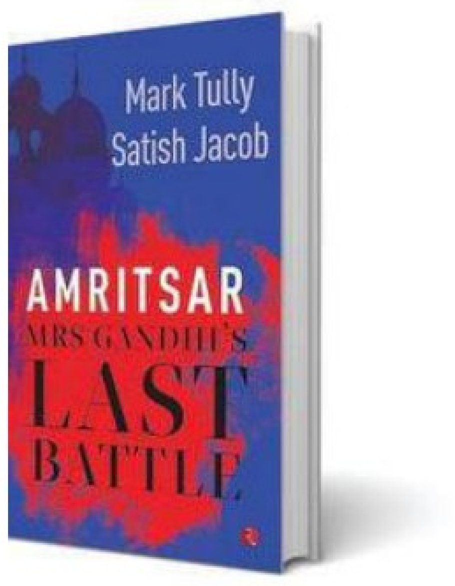
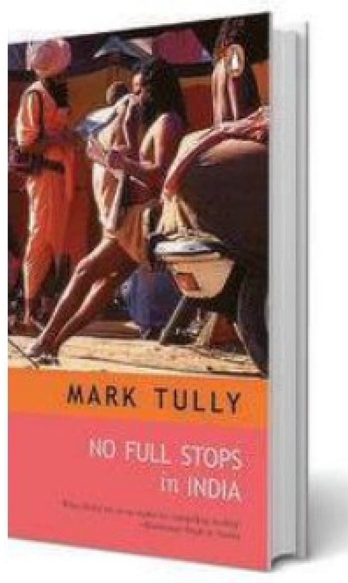
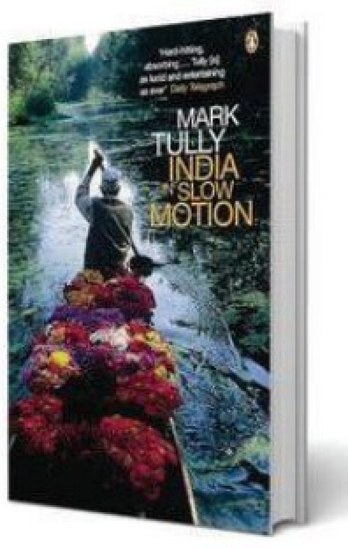
Burning ember: Former BBC journalist Mark Tully chats with a truck-driver at a highway teashop in Dankuni, 20 kilometres northwest of Kolkata, on February 18, 2002. AP







Finding his mark: Tully's books chronicled India on the move

As readers mourn the passing of 'Two-lee Sahib', we read his books, 'No Full Stops in India' and others. The veteran journalist reported for the BBC between 1965 to 1994 on momentous events including the liberation of Bangladesh and the assassination of Indira Gandhi

Suhasini Haidar

For decades, Mark Tully, the BBC correspondent in India, who made his home here, was the man who brought news of India, not only to his listeners in the U.K. and elsewhere, but to Indians themselves. This was not because there was any dearth of journalists, daily newspapers and periodicals in India that could chronicle the times, but because the state controlled the airwaves, both television and radio.

The BBC, available on shortwave radio, was one of the only alternatives to a nation obsessed with the news. Tully, who passed away on January 25, had lived in India as a child, and benefitted from the times he reported for the BBC (1965-1994), for a number of reasons. To begin with, those were times of momentous, nation-altering stories in the region he covered: Bangladesh's liberation, Pakistan Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's hanging, the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and the U.S.-Pakistan funding of the Mujahideen to defeat them.

Emergency, and after

In India, he covered the Emergency (he was expelled by PM Indira Gandhi for his reportage for more than a year before he returned); Mrs. Gandhi's assassination and the anti-Sikh riots; the assassination of former PM Rajiv Gandhi; the Babri Masjid demolition; and the liberalisation of the economy. It was a time when a foreign correspondent in the subcontinent led a charmed existence – access everywhere, big stories to cover, an ease of conversation with the leadership at the top, and budgets that allowed, in fact, encouraged correspondents to "go to the ground".

Those were also times when India was emerging out of a post-independence shell and slowly moving towards its economic potential, which made every colourful story, from a local wedding to the Kumbh mela, one of great curiosity to his viewers and listeners abroad.

Tully's work at the BBC ended when he resigned in 1994, but he never stopped chronicling India through his books, with a reporter's eye that was inquisitive, perceptive, and replete with dry humour. A telling quote appears at the beginning of his most celebrated work, No Full Stops in India (1991). "How do you cope with the poverty?" Tully said he was asked most frequently by visitors to India. "I don't have to. The poor do," he replied, dismissing with his pithy response, the patronising attitude of many foreigners that Indians bristle at. While he never romanticised India's poor, Tully didn't make them an object of scorn or pity either.

Amritsar: Mrs. Gandhi's Last Battle (1985), that he co-authored with his BBC colleague Satish Jacob, is a granular account of the Punjab insurgency and the Indira Gandhi government's decision to storm the Golden Temple in Operation Bluestar. The authors began working on the book before Mrs. Gandhi was assassinated on October 31, 1984, and it came out as violence, including the riots in Delhi, and the crackdown by security forces in Punjab still roiled the situation. However, the authors were able to capture a long-term perspective for readers, not just the anger of the moment. Most of Tully's other books are collections of essays, reflecting on the issues he covered, like caste struggles, Naxalism, corruption and 'Babus', Hindu-Muslim tensions, the political rise of Hindutva, insurgencies in Punjab and the Northeast, and Sati and dowry deaths. While many of the themes are clichéd, his treatment was descriptive, not prescriptive, and hence less likely to offend.

India, in his heart

Above all, Tully focused on an India on the move – as is evident from the titles of his works. No Full Stops in India (originally called 'The Defeat of a Congressman and Other Stories') was followed by India in Slow Motion (2002), written with his partner and fellow-journalist Gillian Wright. His other books include India's Unending Journey, India: The Road Ahead and Non-Stop India. The Heart of India and the quasi-fictional Upcountry Tales: Once Upon a Time in The Heart of India both focus on Uttar Pradesh, where he spent much of his time reporting. Criticism of Tully, including extreme versions of it, when he was chased by a mob outside the Babri Masjid calling for his death, centre on his reporting of only "negative" stories about India, but then that is the nature of the news business. When asked in an interview for a 1992 LA Times profile entitled "The BBC's Battered Sahib", he said, when you work as a journalist, you get "shot from all sides".

Fly on the wall

Through all of his work Tully remains, in his words, "only a bloody journalist" – intrigued by the subjects of his reporting, but removed and dispassionate, as a fly on the wall. Where he deviates is in his obvious affection for the land he adopted, and in his preference for an India that is less-polarised, that celebrates the values of secularism and inclusivity. While he hardly wrote any books about India post-2014, he was known to express his disappointment over government constraints on journalists, including raids on the BBC some years ago, as well as on the "spread of religious hatred", but said that he remained optimistic that Indian traditions of pluralism would endure.

Fitting then, that at his funeral at a Delhi crematorium this week, Vedic chants mingled with ease to strains of the hymn "Abide with Me". Recounting his childhood in the 1930s growing up in a British home in Kolkata, Tully has written about his English nanny, who scolded him when she found he was learning to count in Hindi, as she saw it as her responsibility to ensure her charge didn't 'go native'. Nearly a century later, it is clear that the nanny failed brilliantly, to the immense benefit of his readers, who are today mourning the passing of "Two-lee Sahib".

What is the meaning of "to burn the midnight oil"? (P. Jaya Ramaiah)

When someone "burns the midnight oil", he/she stays awake late into the night. The person does this in order to study or do some work. If you are in the habit of watching television late into the night, you cannot say that you have been burning the midnight oil!

Many students start burning the midnight oil a week before the exams. My boss has given me a new assignment. I expect to be burning the midnight oil for the next week or so.

This expression came into existence much before electricity was discovered. In the old days when scholars wished to read or study late into the night, they made use of lamps. And what did they need in order to keep the lamps burning? Oil, of course! So when a person said he was burning the midnight oil, he meant he was working by the light of an oil lamp. Even today, in many States in our country, thanks to the erratic power supply, students literally burn the midnight oil!

Are the words "rational" and "rationale" pronounced the same way? (M. Charles, Pondicherry)

No, they are not. The "a" in the first syllable of "rational" is pronounced like the "a" in "rat", "bat" and "cat". The "tion" is like the "tion" in "election", "selection", and "vacation". The final "a" is like the "a" in "China". Some people reduce the word to two syllables by dropping the vowel in the second syllable. The main stress always remains on the first syllable.

Let's talk about this in a rational way.

"Rationale", which means the reason on which a system is based, consists of three syllables. The first two syllables sound like the first two syllables of "rational". As for the "a" in the final syllable "ale", the English tend to pronounce it like the "a" in "palm", "balm", and "calm". The Americans, on the other hand, pronounce it like the "a" in "cat", "bat", and "hat". The main stress in this word is on the final syllable "nale".

Seema didn't understand the rationale.

What is the difference in meaning between "regret" and "repent"? (N. Ramana Kumari, Adilabad, A.P.)

When you regret something that you have done, you feel sad and disappointed that you have done it. I regret I wasn't there to help you. Hema regretted losing her temper. He regretted not studying.

"Repent", unlike "regret", is usually used in formal contexts, especially in religious ones. When you repent something, you feel really sorry for something bad that you did in the past; and you wish to make amends for it.

When do we use the word "sic"?

The word "sic" which is pronounced like "sick" is used quite often in comic books. The word is always placed within brackets after someone's quote. The use of the word "sic" indicates that although the quote looks odd in that it contains a mistake, the fault is not yours, but that of the person whom you are quoting.

'MF industry in State growing by over 17% annually'

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Karnataka, which accounts for a significant share in mutual fund industry with an Average Assets Under Management (AAUM) of ₹564,488 crore, is growing by over 17% annually with key cities such as Bengaluru, Mangaluru, Hubballi, Raichur and Mysuru signalling a promising growth trajectory in the medium to long term.

This is according to Franklin Templeton India, part of the US-based asset management company Franklin Resources Inc., which currently manages $1.68 trillion in assets.

The fund house further said it was seeing strong growth potential for mutual funds in Karnataka as new investors look to participate in the India growth story.

Strong growth

Avinash Satwalekar, President of Franklin Templeton India was here in the city on Tuesday as part of his over 4000 kilometer "Change the Soch - Kanyakumari to Kashmir Drive", to meet people from diverse backgrounds to champion financial literacy and inclusion, especially among women, and also to spread investor awareness about mutual fund investing.

The 30-day drive organised on Franklin Templeton turning 30 years in India would cover 21 cities between Kanyakumari and Jammu & Kashmir.

Earlier addressing a media conference here, Mr.Satwalekar said, "Financial literacy among women is fundamental to India's long-term socio-economic progress. While urban centres have made meaningful advances, lakhs of women across Bharat, especially in Tier 2 and Tier 3 regions remain underserved in terms of access to financial knowledge and tools."

Targeting women

Through this drive, the fund house would engage with women from diverse walks of life and empower them with the knowledge and confidence to save, invest and adopt digital finance, he added.

The Indian mutual fund industry's assets under management (AUM) have grown by over six times in a decade, from ₹12.75 trillion as on December 31, 2015, to ₹80.23 trillion as on December 31, 2025, reflecting an annualised growth rate of 20%2, the firm said.

Gali takes exception to inclusion of Lad in Cabinet

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

BJP member and mining baron G. Janardhana Reddy on Wednesday kicked up a row in the Assembly by remarking that the Congress that earlier staged a padayatra to Ballari against illegal mining had "shamelessly" included Santosh Lad in the Cabinet now, though his mining lease had been quashed by the Supreme Court allegedly for violating norms.

The issue came up when Chief Minister Siddaramaiah was explaining to the House why as the Opposition leader in 2011 he had urged then Governor H.R. Bharadwaj to desist from reading his address to the joint session of the legislature, stating that the then government had indulged in corruption.

"I had made such remarks as then Lokayukta Santosh Hegde had submitted a report to the government on illegal mining in which he had referred to the large scale looting of natural resources," the Chief Minister said.

Mr. Janardhana Reddy immediately accused Mr. Lad too of violating norms related to mining and accused the government of being "shameless" in including him into the Cabinet.

PNB to expand digital, startup banking

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Punjab National Bank (PNB) had announced that it would expand digital and start-up banking presence in Bengaluru to reinforce its commitment to digital-led growth and deeper engagement with emerging business ecosystems.

As part of this initiative, PNB is planning to open digital branches in major technology parks across Bengaluru, aimed at addressing the evolving banking needs of professionals, corporates, and digitally savvy customers, indicated Ashok Chandra, MD & CEO, during a visit to Bengaluru to review business performance and to outline the bank's strategic expansion plans for Karnataka.

Digital loans

To strengthen credit access for entrepreneurs and small businesses, PNB has enhanced its MSME Digital Loans. The bank is also focusing on digital PM SVAnidhi, PM Vishwakarma, and PM Surya Ghar Muft Bijli Yojana.

The bank launched the 'Luxura' l Credit Card, a premium credit card targeted at High Networth Individuals (HNIs). Indian women's cricket team captain and PNB brand ambassador Harmanpreet Kaur is the face of this premium segment.

Reaffirming the bank's focus on women empowerment, Mr. Chandra noted that 30% of PNB's workforce comprises women. The bank has introduced dedicated initiatives for women customers, including ₹10 lakh cancer insurance coverage for women savings account holders, and priority lending support for Self-Help Groups (SHGs) and women entrepreneurs.

PNB operates 155 branches across 31 districts in Karnataka.

FIR against Ranveer Singh for hurting religious sentiments

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

A city-based advocate, Prashanth Methal, has filed a private complaint before the 1st Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate (ACJM) Court, alleging that Bollywood actor Ranveer Singh hurt religious sentiments by mocking a sacred daiva tradition during a public event.

Acting on the court's direction, the complaint was referred to the High Grounds police, who on Wednesday registered an FIR for further investigation.

In his complaint, Methal stated that he is a devotee of Chavundi Daiva, a revered guardian spirit worshipped in the traditional Bhoota Kola rituals of coastal Karnataka.

According to the complainant, the alleged incident occurred on November 28, 2025, during the closing ceremony of the International Film Festival of India (IFFI) held in Goa. He alleged that Ranveer Singh, while on stage and in the presence of actor Rishab Shetty, mocked the sacred Daiva tradition by crudely imitating the divine expressions of Panjurli/Guliga Daiva. The actor is also accused of verbally referring to Chavundi Daiva as a "female ghost" and enacting an emotional Chavundi Daiva scene from Kantara: Chapter 1, despite a request not to.

He further alleged that the accused, being a widely followed public figure, performed the act on an international platform with the knowledge that it would hurt the religious sentiments of devotees. The video of the performance went viral on social media.

The complainant stated that he became aware of the incident on December 2, 2025.

The High Grounds police have registered an FIR against Ranveer Singh.

Police get two days custody of Cong. leader Rajeev Gowda

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

A day after Congress leader Rajeev Gowda was remanded in judicial custody after being arrested near the Kerala border, the Shidlaghatta Judicial Magistrate First Class (JMFC) court on Wednesday granted two days of police custody for further investigation.

The court rejected Gowda's bail application and accepted the prosecution's submission seeking his custodial interrogation.

The police are likely to take him into custody on Thursday to probe the circumstances surrounding the incident, including his alleged escape routes and the possible involvement of others who may have assisted him while he was absconding.

Earlier, the police had arrested Michael, an industrialist from Mangaluru, for allegedly providing shelter to Gowda and was granted bail.

The case

The case pertains to the removal of a movie banner of a film starring Zaid Khan, son of Karnataka Minister Zameer Ahmed Khan. According to the complaint, Gowda allegedly called Sidlaghatta Municipal Commissioner Amrutha Gowda, abused her, and issued threats after the banner was taken down.

FIR registered

Based on the complaint filed by Ms. Amrutha, the police registered an FIR on January 14. Following this, Gowda reportedly went absconding.

His anticipatory bail plea was earlier rejected by the trial court and subsequently, the Karnataka High Court Bench also dismissed his petition seeking to quash the FIR and strongly criticised his conduct.

Earlier, the Karnataka Pradesh Congress Committee (KPCC) suspended Gowda, who was the party's Sidlaghatta Assembly candidate in the 2023 elections.

The controversy escalated after audio recordings, allegedly featuring Gowda threatening the municipal commissioner, surfaced on Wednesday.

The clips went viral on social media, triggering protests by municipal employees and drawing sharp political reactions across the State.

Nine injured, four seriously, in dog attack in Dharwad

The Hindu Bureau
HUBBALLI

Nine people were injured, four, including a five-year-old boy, seriously, in a rabid dog attack at Shiradi Layout near University of Agricultural Sciences here on Wednesday.

Canine killed

An enraged public killed the rabid dog with stones.

The victims have suffered multiple wound marks on their bodies.

Sheetal Kabadi, Gangavva Uppar, Laxmi Madar and five-year-old Rishik who have suffered serious injuries are being treated at the District Civil Hospital along with five who have sustained comparatively fewer injuries.

Dog menace

Complaining about the menace of stray dogs in the locality, the residents accused the municipal corporation and the local gram panchayat of inaction despite repeated appeals.

The residents said that as Shiradi Layout is on the periphery of the municipal corporation limits, neither the civic authorities nor the gram panchayat officials have responded to their problem.

No action has been taken on the menace of stray dog despite complaints being filed a fortnight ago, they said.

Domestic help arrested for stealing valuables worth ₹1 crore

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

The J.B. Nagar police have arrested a domestic help for allegedly stealing gold and diamond jewellery and cash, totally amounting to ₹1 crore, from the house of his employer in Bengaluru.

Couple lodges plaint

According to the police, the complaint was lodged by a U.S. couple, who were residing in a villa located at Kodihalli, Rustumbagh Main Road.

The couple stated that they had left for work on the morning of January 21. On returning home in the evening, they noticed that gold and diamond jewellery kept inside a bedroom locker was missing. They suspected their domestic help, who had been working in the house for the past six months.

Based on their complaint, a case was registered and the police launched an investigation. The police then apprehended the domestic help who, during questioning, reportedly confessed to have committed the theft. It came to light that the accused had hidden the stolen jewellery in his residence at Sudhamanagar.

Recovered

Based on the information, the police recovered 176 gm of gold and diamond jewellery, and ₹39,000 in cash from his house. The total value of the recovered valuables is estimated to be ₹1 crore.

The accused was produced in a court and was remanded in judicial custody.

‘Education, tech priority sectors in Indo-Australian partnership’

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Education and technology continue to be priority sectors in the Australia-India partnership, indicated Vik Singh, Consul (Commercial) and Trade & Investment Commissioner, South Asia, Australian Trade and Investment Commission here on Tuesday.

Mr. Singh was speaking at an interactive session on Tariff-Free Access for Indian Exporters under India-Australia ECTA, at the Bangalore Chamber of Industry & Commerce (BCIC) in the city.

There was a growing momentum in Australia-India ties, with Karnataka playing a central role in this expanding partnership, he said.

The Karnataka government had earlier said that University of New South Wales (UNSW) would open its campus in Bengaluru in August this year.

“As one of the world’s leading universities, UNSW’s decision to establish a presence in Bengaluru reflects the confidence Australian institutions have in Karnataka’s talent ecosystem and innovation potential,” Mr. Singh remarked, adding, “This campus will play a key role in strengthening academic collaboration, research partnerships and technology exchange between Australia and India.”

Karnataka, he further said, has emerged as one of Australia’s most important partners in India, driven by strong synergies in education, innovation and enterprise. This was reflected not only in growing trade and investment flows, but also in Australia’s decision to establish one of its largest consular presences in India here in Karnataka, second only to the High Commission in New Delhi, Mr. Singh added.

K. Ravi, senior vice president, Bangalore Chamber of Industry & Commerce (BCIC), said the implementation of tariff-free access for Indian exporters under the India-Australia ECTA was a landmark development that would significantly enhance India’s export competitiveness in global markets.

“With 100% of Australian tariff lines moving to zero duty from January 1, 2026, this historic step unlocks new opportunities across key sectors such as textiles, engineering goods, pharmaceuticals, gems and jewellery and agriculture – accelerating MSME-led growth, boosting employment and broadening India’s export reach,’’ Mr. Ravi further said.

Techie loses ₹2.3 lakh to traffic fine scam

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

A 57-year-old techie lost ₹2.3 lakh after falling prey to a fake traffic fine scam on Monday. Based on a complaint, the Whitefield cybercrime police have registered a case.

According to the complaint on January 26, the complainant received messages from unknown numbers, claiming that a traffic fine was pending. The messages contained a web link prompting payment.

Believing the message to be genuine, the complainant clicked on the link and proceeded to pay ₹500. During the transaction, fraudsters allegedly captured details of his credit card details. Subsequently, an amount of ₹2,32,272.14 was debited from his credit card account and transferred to unknown persons. In a similar case, a 53-year-old person, a resident of Uttarahalli, lost ₹3.03 lakh to similar fraud and filed a complaint with the south division cybercrime police.

The police have advised the public to verify traffic challans only through official government portals and to avoid clicking on suspicious links.

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

The K.R. Puram police have arrested a couple for allegedly stealing gold ornaments from women at crowded places such as temples, fairs and public buses, and recovered 398 gm of gold jewellery worth ₹60 lakh.

According to the police, a complaint was lodged on April 4, 2025, stating that her gold jewellery was stolen during a visit to a temple.

As per the complaint, on April 3 the complainant visited Mariyamma Temple at Devasandra along with her family. After offering prayers and collecting prasada, she noticed that her 30-gm gold mangalya chain had gone missing. It was suspected that unidentified persons had stolen the jewellery amid the crowd.

A case of theft was registered at the K.R. Puram Police Station, following which a detailed investigation was launched.

Acting on credible information and technical inputs, the police tracked down the couple, identified as Gayathri, 33, and Srikanth, 42, residents of Kamasandra in Bengaluru south on December 23, 2025, at a bus stand area in Kammanahalli.

During interrogation, the accused allegedly confessed to their involvement in the case and revealed that they, along with three other associates from outside the State, targeted women by mingling with them during religious fairs, temple visits and bus travel, and stole gold ornaments.

The police further revealed that part of the stolen gold was pledged at a bank in Hebbagodi, while some jewellery was sold at a jewellery shop in Mysuru.

Based on their confession, the police recovered the stolen valuables pledged at the Hebbagodi bank. Subsequently, on January 23, 2026, 40 gm of gold jewellery sold at a Mysuru jewellery shop was also recovered. The total recovery stood at 398 gm of gold jewellery valued at ₹60,00,000.

Mature and pragmatic

India did well to negotiate a fair deal with the European Union

The free trade agreement (FTA) between India and the European Union (EU) is significant not just on account of the sizes of the economies involved, but also because it showcases Indian negotiators' skill and maturity when dealing with a powerful counterparty. India has managed to negotiate favourable terms in each of the previous eight FTAs of the last four years or so, but those were with much smaller economies or groupings. For context, the other eight FTAs together accounted for about 16% of India's total trade in 2024-25, while the EU itself accounted for nearly 12%. Under the latest deal, the EU will drop tariffs on 99.5% of the items that India exports, with most going down to zero immediately upon implementation. India has given tariff concessions on 97.5% of Europe's exports. Both sides did well to address issues that were previously intractable. India ensured that strategic agricultural sectors and dairy were excluded from the deal. The EU too managed to exclude several of its sensitive agricultural sectors. What stood out was how the two sides arrived at a workable solution on automobiles. It had been disagreements over auto and auto parts that had derailed negotiations in 2013. The quota-based system now arrived at not only protects India's domestic manufacturers at the lower end of the price band, but also provides a big opportunity for Europe's luxury carmakers. Similarly, the quota-based wine tariffs not only give French winemakers an opportunity – a fervent demand on their part – but also provide protections to India's burgeoning domestic industry. Such a mature and pragmatic approach to persistent hindrances is the way large economies must negotiate with each other. This is further illustrated by the mobility, defence, and technology agreements that were signed separately.

That said, there are some concerns. India could not negotiate any concessions under the Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM). At the moment, this tariff applies to only six products, but is designed to include all industrial goods in some years. The upside is that CBAM applies to all countries equally, and India has done well to negotiate a deal wherein any concession granted to a third country would automatically apply to it as well. Second, if India is to attract foreign investors looking to take advantage of a cheaper export route to Europe, it will have to quickly implement reforms that encourage large-scale manufacturing. Finally, with the FTA document to be translated into 27 European languages before it can be cleared by each country and finally the European Parliament, actual implementation will likely take a while. India must push for as speedy a clearing process as possible. Otherwise, the gains so painstakingly bargained for will be too late to offset the U.S. tariff pain.

Abysmal failure

The Kolkata warehouse fire is a telling indictment of the State government

When 14 people died in a massive hotel fire in the Burrabazar area of central Kolkata last April, it seemed that devastating fires had become a disturbingly routine phenomenon in the city. The tragedy on the eve of this year's Republic Day, in which 11 are reported dead so far, has only confirmed that inference. Seventeen missing persons complaints have been filed, and the toll is likely to climb as agencies clear the area. The bodies are charred beyond recognition and DNA tests would be required to identify them. The dead were mostly migrant workers from faraway places such as Purba Medinipur and the makeshift warehouses were their night shelters. A year ago, the hotel accident highlighted the poor fire safety aspects of inner cities of India's metropolises. This time, the devastating fire broke out in two large warehouses stretched over 12,000 sq. ft. in Anandpur. The State fire department has declared that the warehouses were not approved for fire safety and had no fire safety features. One of the outlets belonged to a popular momo eatery chain and the second to a local "decorator". Decorators help furnish events such as weddings and may have stored fabrics, chairs, and various accessories. Those who escaped the fire reported foul smells and thick smoke that can be a quick killer. The fire raged until Tuesday afternoon, requiring 12 engines to put it out. This indicates the extent of storage of flammable material and the lack of attention given to constructing the structures in a way that would facilitate efficient firefighting.

The State agencies that generally amp up their visibility after such accidents have been reticent. Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee, who typically rushes to such spots, has not visited the site yet. Social media channels of State agencies have been silent. It may well be that the ruling Trinamool Congress does not want to draw too much attention to the tragedy just ahead of Assembly elections. A compensation of ₹10 lakh per person has been announced. So far, not even a perfunctory noise has been made regarding the larger issues – the cause of the accident and how such tragedies can be avoided in the future. That such large unapproved structures with little attention to fire safety had come up at an ecologically sensitive area in Kolkata indicates the abysmal state of civic administration in what used to be the foremost city of India.

India, the beautiful — but first, India the functional

Shashi Tharoor

MP (Congress) for Thiruvananthapuram (Lok Sabha), an award-winning author, a former Minister of State for Human Rights Resources Development, and a former Chairman of the Parliamentary Standing Committee on Information Technology

India is a land of astonishing contrasts. It offers snow-capped peaks and sun-drenched beaches, ancient temples and cutting-edge tech parks, spiritual retreats and bustling bazaars. Yet, despite this kaleidoscope of experiences, India welcomed just 5.6 million foreign tourist arrivals till August 2025 – a modest figure for a country of 1.4 billion. Singapore, with a population smaller than Delhi's, drew 11.6 million by August 2025. Thailand earned over $60 billion from tourism; India made barely a third of that.

These numbers are not just statistical curiosities. They reflect a deeper malaise in India's tourism strategy – one that demands urgent attention if we are to unlock the sector's full potential. Tourism is not merely about showcasing monuments or selling sunsets; it is about creating experiences that are seamless, safe, and memorable. And on that front, India has work to do.

Three main problems

India's problems can be summarised in three "I"s: image, infrastructure and 'India itself'. Let us analyse each. First, image: the perception of the country abroad. India's 'Incredible India' campaign is evocative, but branding alone cannot overcome the weight of negative headlines. Concerns about safety, especially for women, with many foreigners considering India to be unsafe for women travelling alone; scams; sanitation; and bureaucratic hassles often shape the global imagination more than our cultural richness. Tourists want to feel welcome, not wary. Singapore and Thailand have succeeded not just by being clean or affordable, but by being consistent in their messaging as safe, efficient, and, especially in Thailand's case, fun.

India's vastness makes a single narrative difficult, but that does not mean marketing the country is impossible. We must segment our appeal – Spiritual India, Adventure India, Luxury India – and market each with clarity and conviction to different audiences abroad. It is time for 'Incredible Indias', in the plural, to be sold to the world. The Buddhist circuit, the Ramayana circuit, even the cricketing circuit should all be marketed to appropriate foreign constituencies.

Infrastructure is the second problem area. The tourist experience begins the moment one lands. Airports, immigration counters, taxis, Wi-Fi – these are first impressions. A luxury hotel means little if the road outside is potholed and the signage indecipherable. Last-mile connectivity to remote destinations remains a challenge. Clean public toilets, reliable internet, and well-maintained heritage sites are foundational. Paradoxically, while India can be a budget destination, mid-range and luxury travel often comes at a premium, making the country less competitive than its Southeast Asian neighbours.

Then comes 'India itself'. The sheer scale can overwhelm the uninitiated. Crowds, noise, and a service culture that is not always tourist-friendly can cause frustration. Scammers, touts, beggars and sexual harassers exist, and they erode trust. The hospitality sector reportedly faces a 40% shortfall in trained staff, and many graduates prefer the predictability of office jobs to the unpredictability of guest relations. We need vocational training, multilingual guides, and a professional workforce that sees tourism not as a fallback, but as a calling.

Until India addresses the fundamentals — image, infrastructure, and experience — it will remain a tantalising idea rather than a top-tier destination

Immigration, too, must evolve. While e-visas have helped, India still ranks behind many Asian countries on ease-of-travel indexes. A 'Visa on Arrival for the World' policy may sound ambitious, but it is worth exploring – though I am certain that would require a major transformation in the attitude of the Home Ministry. Stories of foreigners turned away at Indian airports because of past criticisms of the country do disproportionate damage. India is a large and confident nation; it can absorb dissent without rejecting the dissenter. We need to train immigration officers to be friendly and welcoming to foreigners. And as a nation, Indians need to accept criticism of policies as part of democratic discourse.

Fixing the deficit

Fixing India's tourism deficit therefore requires a multi-pronged strategy that addresses both perception and reality. First, rebrand and relaunch. Let us move beyond generic campaigns and build targeted narratives. Promote well-defined circuits – the Golden Triangle, the Himalayan trail, the coastal belt – with impeccable infrastructure and safety. Invest in digital storytelling: immersive virtual tours, influencer partnerships, and user-generated content that showcases India's magic through authentic lenses. If I were to write India's tourism tagline, I would say, 'Incredible Indias: Experience the Infinite'. 'Not just a place to visit, but a world to inhabit – spiritually, culturally, and emotionally.'

Second, build infrastructure that matches ambition. Encourage public-private partnerships to adopt and maintain heritage sites. Scale up the 'Adopt a Heritage' scheme for companies to renovate and maintain sites everywhere in India. Improve roads, rail, and sustainable transport to lesser-known gems. Launch a nationwide 'Clean Tourism' campaign with clean restrooms, signage, and waste management at every major destination. Make museums more digital, more interactive, less dusty and worn.

Third, prioritise safety and training. Expand the tourist police force, especially by hiring and training large numbers of women; ensure multilingual support; and crack down on scams and harassment. Create centralised apps for verified guides and transport. Invest in skill development – not just for five-star hotels, but for homestays, eco-lodges, and local artisans.

Fourth, streamline the visa process. Make e-visas faster, simpler, and more intuitive. Offer long-term multi-entry visas for frequent travellers. Reciprocity is the usual rule, but India can identify countries whose nationals are unlikely to pose any immigration risk, and make an exception to that rule. It is important to remove bureaucratic hurdles that deter rather than protect.

Fifth, promote sustainability and authenticity. Today's global traveller seeks eco-tourism and meaningful experiences. India must balance growth with preservation. That means regulating footfalls at fragile sites, promoting community-based tourism, and ensuring that development does not come at the cost of cultural or environmental degradation.

Economic opportunity, strategic imperative

Tourism must be a national priority. A World Tourism Organisation report notes investment on tourism creates multiple times more jobs than the same amounts spent on manufacturing. As automation reshapes industry, the differential will only increase. Tourism offers employment not just to more people, but particularly to the unskilled and semi-skilled – precisely the demographic that needs to be uplifted. In a region where youth unemployment can fuel unrest (as we have seen in Sri Lanka, Bangladesh, and Nepal), tourism is not just an economic opportunity; it is a strategic imperative. This is why it deserves to be supported by the government as a vital industry, with tax breaks and policy support.

The hospitality industry is a curator of India's image in the eyes of the world. It is a shame that the otherwise rightly hailed GST reforms have left the hospitality industry behind. The denial of input tax credit across the full range of hotels' revenue sources ironically means that they were better off at 12% GST than they now are at 5%. This must be fixed.

India has the history of Egypt, the natural beauty of New Zealand, and the cultural depth of a continent. But until we address the fundamentals – image, infrastructure, and experience – we will remain a tantalising idea rather than a top-tier destination.

India doesn't need to reinvent itself. It needs to refine itself. The world is waiting. Let us give it a reason to come - and to stay.

The new logic of the Chinese economy

Xu Feihong

Chinese Ambassador to India

As the global economic and trade order suffers a severe blow, the giant ship of the Chinese economy once again demonstrates its strong resilience, with its GDP exceeding 140 trillion yuan (approximately $20 trillion) in 2025. This represents a year-on-year increase of 5%. China's contribution to global economic growth is expected to reach around 30%. This hard-won achievement has drawn significant global attention. I would like to share some views on several specific issues that Indian friends are concerned about.

What drives China's economic growth?

In 2025, China's economy moved forward, driven by consumption, exports, and investment, but its internal structure is undergoing a profound and positive transformation.

Domestic demand is the primary engine of China's growth. In 2025, final consumption expenditure contributed 52% to economic growth. Some people may conclude that China has "insufficient consumption" simply because the prices of Chinese goods and services are significantly lower than the global average. In fact, measured by internationally accepted standards of physical consumption, China ranks among the world's top countries in terms of total basic consumption. Among these, the average number of mobile phones owned per person is 1.28, which is among the world's leading levels. The average daily protein intake is 124.6 grams, which is higher than that of the U.S. and Japan. The average annual vegetable consumption is 109.8 kilogrammes, the highest in the world.

China's exports of goods and services demonstrated strong resilience, contributing 32.7% to economic growth and becoming a key booster. Despite an unfavourable international trade environment, 'Made in China', especially high-tech products, were widely popular thanks to its complete industrial chain and continuously improving innovation capabilities, with high-tech product exports growing by as much as 13.2% throughout the year. Exports to major markets such as ASEAN and the European Union maintained stable growth, effectively offsetting market fluctuations in other regions.

In contrast, gross capital formation contributed 15.3% to growth, which reveals that the Chinese economy is undergoing a difficult but necessary transformation of growth engines: from relying on investment and exports to a better model in which domestic consumption takes the lead, while export and innovation add impetus. Amid this transition, breakthroughs have been consistently achieved in cutting-edge fields such as AI, quantum technology, and brain-computer interfaces. The output of high-end manufacturing, including servers and industrial robots, has maintained rapid growth. Green industries such as renewable electricity and clean energy have flourished. These emerging drivers are clearly outlining the future course of the Chinese economy.

It provides new opportunities for China-India cooperation

Why export production capacity?

China is not exporting "overcapacity," but rather high-quality production capacity and advanced solutions that are widely welcomed by developing countries. From the supply side, there is no "overcapacity" in China. In 2025, the capacity utilisation rate of China's above-designated-size industry stood at 74.4%, equivalent to that of the U.S. and the EU across all sectors. The global competitiveness of Chinese products stems from long-term, high-intensity R&D investment, robust domestic competition, and the most comprehensive industrial system, rather than subsidies or dumping.

From the demand side, the fundamental driving force behind the booming development of China's production capacity is the real demand from the global market. Many developing countries have enhanced their infrastructure, achieved energy transition and embarked on industrialisation by introducing high-quality Chinese equipment and technology. As the American economist, Jeffrey Sachs, pointed out, the Western labeling of Chinese manufacturing as "overcapacity" is out of "jealousy."

Mitigating India's trade deficit with China

According to data from General Administration of Customs of China, China-India trade reached a historic high of $155.6 billion in 2025. Many of the goods imported from China are raw materials and components that are much needed in India and that are conducive to India's economic development. This fully demonstrates the strong economic complementarity and great potential for cooperation between the two countries.

Meanwhile, India's exports to China have shown positive momentum, reaching $19.7 billion in 2025 and marking a year-on-year increase of 9.7%. Notably, growth rates in the last two months of 2025 were particularly strong, reaching 90% and 67% respectively. China has never deliberately pursued a trade surplus and is willing not only to be the world's factory but also the world's market. China's tariff level remains low by international standards at 7.3%. The negative list for foreign investment access has been continuously shortened, and China's visa-free policy keeps expanding. In particular, the Central Economic Work Conference identified "expanding domestic demand" as the top priority for economic work in 2026. With a population of over 1.4 billion, including more than 400 million in the middle-income group, China offers huge opportunities for high-quality Indian products.

We welcome more Indian enterprises to leverage platforms such as the China International Import Expo to bring more premium Indian products to the Chinese market, transforming trade deficits into cooperative surpluses. By moving towards each other, we can share dividends of development and jointly create a brighter future for Asia.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The India-EU trade deal

With U.S. President Donald Trump proving to be more and more unreliable, India's trade deal with the EU was the need of the hour ("Mother of all deals': India and EU finalise FTA", Jan. 28). Freer trade is the answer to the U.S.'s protectionist tendencies.

V. Lakshmanan
Tirupur

To open new vistas at a moment of deep global divide will benefit India and also send a stern message to President Donald Trump that India will not dance to his tunes. His arrogance and condescending attitude of "you are with us or against us" needed a firm rebuttal, which this FTA has helped India achieve. This definitely is a win-win deal for India and the EU.

Ajit Pawar's demise

The death of Ajit Pawar is shocking. It is a great loss to the State as he still had a long innings left in politics. He was considered the heir apparent to the NCP. However, he knew which side the bread was buttered. When the Maha Vikas Aghadi government fell after the split of the Shiv Sena, and the Eknath Shinde faction joined hands with the BJP to form the government, Ajit Pawar also joined hands with the BJP-Shiv Sena alliance. At the recently held urban local body polls, however, he forged an alliance with NCP-Sharadchandra Pawar even while continuing his party's alliance with the Mahayuti. He was an astute politician. Will the NCP continue to be independent or will it merge with NCP-Sharadchandra Pawar? Ajit Pawar's departure is sure to once again change the dynamics of Maharashtra politics.

Who loses when teachers are attacked?

Anish Gupta
Associate Professor, Delhi School of Economics

Last October, at the University of Delhi (DU), a student union leader, accompanied by a group of supporters, slapped a teacher in the presence of the police, fellow teachers, and students. In a similar way, last year's student union leader reportedly went around several colleges, creating a ruckus and misbehaving with teachers, including a physically challenged teacher, and even with principals. Interestingly, these incidents are not outbursts of anger but calculated displays of power. There seems to be, perhaps, a competition of sorts to gain cheap publicity.

However, the purpose of this article is not to deliver moral sermons or indulge in emotional rhetoric such as "a society that disrespects teachers cannot progress" nor to recall Sant Kabir's dictum - "Without a teacher, knowledge does not arise." Instead, it seeks to reflect on what such incidents do to the process of teaching-learning, and most importantly, to the students who remain silent, thinking it is not their concern.

The focus here is certainly on DU, which, being one of the finest institutions in the country, has been relatively less affected by such acts of violence. Elsewhere, however, teachers have been killed, thrashed, or even had their hands chopped off for stopping harassment, preventing cheating in examinations, or setting questions deemed unacceptable by fundamentalists, respectively.

Implications of attacks

Those in the profession know that teaching is not a mechanical process one can switch on at will. It is a deep human exchange, sustained by trust, curiosity, and respect. More than the content, the quality of a lecture depends on the teacher's enthusiasm.

However, when a teacher's dignity is attacked, the teacher may continue to take classes, but without the same warmth, creativity, or emotional investment, and the act of teaching will turn into a mechanical exercise, performed merely because it is part of the job.

> Teachers learn to adapt and survive, as seen in many State universities, while continuing to draw their salaries. The real victims will be the students and their parents.

The second casualty is the fairness of student evaluation, which is one of the most crucial aspects of learning. Just as the judiciary cannot deliver justice under threat, teachers cannot assess students objectively when they fear public humiliation. To avoid confrontation, many begin grading leniently, blurring the line between effort and indifference, merit and mediocrity.

This trend dates back to the early 2000s, when Delhi University introduced a 30% internal assessment component (now about 43.75%) to promote continuous evaluation and reduce reliance on final examinations. Internal assessment allows students to see their marked scripts, often leading to unnecessary comparisons and demands for justification. To avoid frequent confrontations and disputes over marks, many teachers began awarding higher grades. The outcome was clear: average scores rose across undergraduate courses.

When marks lose credibility, employers lose faith in degrees, and students lose faith in the very value of learning.

The third casualty is the safety of students. Teachers are often the first people students turn to when something goes wrong. But the moment teachers themselves begin to feel unsafe, they naturally hesitate to get involved and start referring every issue to the police, and we all know how police administration usually functions. The exposure of young students to such an unjust system at an early age can have lasting consequences.

Fourth, history offers grim lessons, as seen in the exodus of students that follow when campuses turn violent. Once this culture seeps into educational institutions, it can take decades or become impossible to undo the damage. For instance, universities in West Bengal, Bihar, eastern Uttar Pradesh, and until recently in Kerala were once among India's most reputed centres of learning. Today, students from these regions migrate elsewhere because of violent politicisation of campuses.

Are teachers to blame?

It is often argued that students' disrespect toward teachers stems from a decline in teachers' values and quality. But this view overlooks a larger truth: corruption has corroded almost every institution in the country, i.e., the bureaucracy, police, judiciary, politics, and the media. Everywhere, officials seize every opportunity to extract money from the public. And yet, public educational institutions have largely held their moral ground. Had the teaching community at DU been similarly corrupt, it could have monetised admissions or internal assessment marks; yet not a single incident supports such a charge. Despite holding immense power over students' futures, teachers have largely continued to uphold integrity and moral responsibility.

Who bears the burden most

Once a culture of violence takes root and teachers are forced to kneel, it is not the teachers who suffer most. They learn to adapt and survive, as seen in many State universities, while continuing to draw their salaries. The real victims will be the students and their parents, who will pay the ultimate price through poor-quality education, unsafe campuses, and the need to migrate elsewhere. However, given the increasingly hostile environment abroad, even that escape may no longer be available.

Even alumni who remain indifferent to what happens in their alma mater must realise that when a reputed institution loses its standing, the respect and credibility they command for having studied there also fade.

Quenching Chennai's growing thirst

New reservoir should be built by addressing livelihood issues of all stakeholders

STATE OF PLAY

T. Ramakrishnan
ramakrishnan.t@thehindu.co.in

It is well known that Chennai and most of Tamil Nadu do not have much potential for tapping surface water and building any new reservoir, even for drinking water purposes. So, when the State government announces a plan to raise one, particularly for the city, the move should have received praise. Instead, the government is drawing flak from sections of fishermen and residents on the grounds that the initiative will "disrupt their livelihood and permanently alter" the fragile brackish-water ecosystem.

The project in question is the ₹342.6-crore Mamallan drinking water reservoir project, for which Chief Minister M.K.Stalin laid the foundation stone on January 19. Billed as the city's sixth drinking water source (the others being Cholavaram, Red Hills, Chembarampakkam, Kannankottai Thervoykandigai and Satyamurti Sagar in Poondi), the proposed reservoir will come up in two years near Mamallapuram, a world heritage site about 55 km from Chennai. It will be spread over a land parcel in Thiruporur taluk of Chengalpattu district between the East Coast Road (ECR) and the parallel Old Mamallapuram Road (OMR).

Named after Narasimhavarman I (630-668 CE) of the Pallava dynasty who was called Mamallan (the great wrestler), the drinking water reservoir project is aimed at harnessing surplus flows from the Manamathy group of tanks and Kovalam sub-basin to augment Chennai's water supply with up to 170 million litres per day (MLD). To be constructed with a capacity of 1.65 thousand million cubic feet (TMC), the proposed reservoir will benefit approximately 13 lakh people, accounting for about 14% of around 1,200 MLD that is being supplied by the Chennai Metrowater to Chennai and other parts of the Chennai Metropolitan Area (CMA). Among those who are going to be covered are residents of Sholinganallur, Pallikaranai, Siruseri and Mamallapuram. As Chennai does not have any perennial source of water and is dependent on the Krishna water from Andhra Pradesh for a bulk of its requirements, its average quantum of water supply is 700 to 800 MLD. The present demand of 1,100 MLD is expected to double in 10 years. For the broader CMA that covers the reservoir site, the demand is projected to be 2,500 MLD by 2035.

People of fishing villages, from Kanathur Reddikuppam to Kokkilimedu, have conveyed to the State government that it would "destroy their customary fishing grounds and undermine the spirit" of the Coastal Regulation Zone (CRZ) rules. People of Kovalam Kuppam have even sought the intervention of the Union Ministry of Ports, Shipping and Waterways in the matter as they contend that the reservoir would block the natural flow of the Buckingham Canal. Many residents used the Gram Sabhas organised on Republic Day to reiterate their opposition to the project and submitted petitions in this regard.

It may be recalled that in the 1990s, the ECR project faced a similar opposition. Then too objections were raised citing likely damage to the environment and livelihood opportunities of different sections of people, including farmers. Now operational for nearly 30 years, the Chennai-Cuddalore stretch of the ECR is among the affluent areas of the State.

Defending the project in the Kovalam sub-basin, senior officials say it will serve as a flood buffer and avert sea water intrusion. In the last 25-odd years, a spike in real estate activity on the ECR and the OMR has shrunk the flood plains and swamps. It has reduced the flood buffering capacity of the Pallikaranai swamp, according to an internal official document on the project. The project, which does not involve the acquisition of private land, has been mooted to address these problems. Apart from new fishing opportunities in the reservoir, the project envisages the removal of silt from the Buckingham Canal. This will, in turn, improve the flow of brackish water and floodwater, eventually creating a better fishing ground, say officials.

Notwithstanding the pros and cons of the project, all stakeholders should keep in mind that development comes at a price. At the same time, the authorities should ensure that such development remains sustainable without jeopardising the interests of people, especially vulnerable sections. And that would be the best tribute to Mamallan and other great Pallava kings, who had excelled in water management even about 1,500 years ago.

Voters increasingly link their choices with policies, delivery

Data show rising women's participation and independent decision-making in voting; majority of the voters believe that their vote has a tangible influence

DATA POINT

Krishangi Sinha
Kirti Sharma

On January 25, India observed National Voters' Day, which aims to promote electoral awareness and encourage informed participation. Close on the heels of the moment, let us take a close look at how voter participation and political behaviour have evolved over the past decade. Lokniti-CSDS survey data offer important insights into the stability of electoral turnout, the gradual rise in women's participation, and the shifting patterns of political autonomy and influence among voters.

Overall voter turnout in general elections has remained remarkably stable in the last three cycles. Lokniti-CSDS data show a turnout of 66.44% in 2014, rising modestly to 67.40% in 2019, and stabilising at 66.10% in 2024 (Table 1). This consistency reflects the institutional robustness of India's electoral system and the sustained willingness of its citizens to participate. Women's turnout has historically lagged behind men's, but data over the past decade indicate a gradual and structurally significant narrowing of this gap. Women's participation rose from 65.54% in 2014 to 67.18% in 2019, before stabilising at 65.78% in 2024, a level still higher than a decade earlier and indicative of an enduring upward momentum rather than a short-term fluctuation.

This trend reflects broader political and social transformations, including more sustained mobilisation of women through voter awareness initiatives, improved access to polling stations, and administrative reforms such as women-managed booths and streamlined facilitation processes, all of which have facilitated safer and more inclusive electoral spaces. The rise also points towards a gradual enhancement in women's political autonomy and confidence, even as persistent gendered constraints remain visible in related indicators of political decision-making.

Lokniti's 2024 pre-poll findings indicate that a majority of Indian voters believe that their vote has a tangible influence on how things run in the country, with 56% expressing confidence in the impact of their ballot, and one in every five voters feeling that it makes no difference, as shown in Table 2. This strong sense of vote efficacy reflects sustained trust in electoral institutions and suggests growing expectations of accountability and increasing willingness among citizens, particularly young voters, to link their electoral choices with policy performance and delivery.

Women as prominent voters participate most where political decisions are visible and actionable. Findings from a Lokniti-CSDS study conducted in collaboration with the Konrad Adenauer Stiftung (KAS), as highlighted in Table 3, underline that women's political interest is closely linked to the immediacy of governance. Nearly half of the women voters report moderate to high interest in local politics, where proximity to local government strengthens everyday political connection. This interest continues at the State level, with 44% of women expressing moderate to high interest in State politics and a substantial 38% at the national level. Together, the data patterns underscore a continuum of political engagement rather than fragmentation, and this engagement provides a strong base for expanding women's participation across higher levels of governance.

Debates on voting behaviour often suggest that voters rely heavily on advice from family, spouses, or community leaders. However, Lokniti data from the 2014 and 2024 Lok Sabha elections show that while advice exists, independent decision-making remains predominant with variations across gender, location, and income groups.

In 2014, nearly six in every 10 voters reported deciding on their own and this remained almost unchanged at 59% in 2024. This persistence is closely linked to India's electoral framework. The secret ballot, introduced in 1951-52, institutionalised vote privacy. It was reinforced by the adoption of electronic voting machines (EVMs) in 2004 and later voter verifiable paper audit trail (VVPAT) systems in 2013, enabling voters to hear advice while keeping their final choice fully independent.

Gender-wise, men report higher levels of independent voting than women (Table 4) though the patterns remain stable over time. Among men, independent voting increases marginally from 65% in 2014 to 66% in 2024, while among women it rises from 51% to 52%. Dependence on spousal advice remains limited and does not show an upward trend. Similar patterns emerge across rural-urban settings. In rural areas, independent voting increases from 56% in 2014 to 60% in 2024. While among urban voters, independent voting remains high but dips slightly by 3% (62% in 2014 to 59% in 2024). Contrary to common assumptions, rural voters exhibit levels of independence similar to urban voters.

Lokniti data reveal a decade of continuity and gradual transformation in electoral behaviour. Turnout remains stable; women's participation has strengthened; and voters continue to express confidence in the impact of their ballot. Importantly, independent decision-making persists across gender, class, and rural-urban divides, highlighting the resilience of India's electoral institutions and the maturity of its democratic culture. As National Voters' Day reminds us of the value of participation, these patterns affirm that Indian voters are not only engaged but increasingly exercising their agency with autonomy and awareness.

Plan for India's own communication satellite

Madras, Jan. 28: Prof. U. R. Rao, Director, ISRO Satellite Systems Project, Bangalore said here to-day that the Department of Space had plans for the design and development of an Indian-made communications satellite. It was now on the drawing board and could be launched with the French launch vehicle, "Ariane". It would be suitably positioned to cover the entire subcontinent. The time frame for launch is around 1980.

Disclosing this at a two-day seminar on "space communication" organised by the Electronic Engineers' Association, College of Engineering, Guindy, Prof. Rao said another major programme which had already taken off the ground was the design and development of a small satellite called Rohini weighing about 40 kgs. This would be utilised, along with the Indian Launch Vehicle SLV-3, for initially conducting technological experiments and subsequently for more meaningful scientific and application experiments. The first such satellite is expected to be launched in late 1978.

Closely following the successful launching of Aryabhata was an ongoing plan for the development of an Earth Observation Satellite (SEO) that would yield data relevant to the areas of hydrology and meteorology, he said. Explaining developments in space technology, Prof. Rao referred to the important role that satellites could play in national development.

Staggering profits in Calcutta jute industry

London, Jan. 28: Weekly Forward states that the report of Mr. Johnston, M.P., and Mr. J. F. Sime, Secretary, Dundee Jute Workers Union, upon their recent inquiries into the jute industry in India declares that the profits of jute mills in Calcutta are staggering, the total gain of shareholders for the decade ending 1924 being 300 million sterling or 90 per cent per annum on capital.

The average wage of 300,000 workers is at present 12½ sterling per annum. The report describes their housing conditions and says that the death-rate among children under ten years is 50 per cent. It speaks of the absence of even primary education among child-workers.

Ajit Pawar, 4 others dead in plane crash

Before the funeral procession, the mortal remains will be taken to Mr. Pawar's residence at Katewadi. Union Home Minister Amit Shah, BJP president Nitin Nabin, Maharashtra Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis, Deputy Chief Minister Eknath Shinde and members of the State Cabinet are expected to be present.

NCP (SP) leader Sharad Pawar, who rushed from Mumbai, met family members and held discussions with party leaders at Vidya Pratishthan.

"Ajit Pawar's untimely death is a massive shock to Maharashtra. The State has today lost a capable and decisive leader. The loss that has occurred cannot be compensated, but not everything is in our hands," he said, adding, "There is no politics in this. It is purely an accident. The agony of this death is felt by Maharashtra, by all of us. Please do not bring politics into this," he said.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi posted a condolence message on his social media handle on X, calling Ajit Pawar a "leader of the people, having a strong grassroots level connect". "He was widely respected as a hardworking personality at the forefront of serving the people of Maharashtra... His untimely demise is very shocking and saddening. Condolences to his family and countless admirers. Om Shanti," he posted.

Mr Fadnavis said it was a personal loss for him. "The death of my friend, colleague, and grassroots leader Ajit Pawar is distressing. It is heartbreaking. My heart is numb. I have no words to express my feelings. This is a personal loss for me. This is an irreparable loss and a difficult day for Maharashtra," he said.

Centre working with 'full sensitivity': Murmu

Terror camps across the border were destroyed, she said and asserted that any terrorist attack would be responded to with decisive action. India had proved that power could be used with responsibility and wisdom, she said.

The President referred to British official Thomas Macaulay and his policies during the colonial rule in the 19th century. "Through Macaulay's conspiracies, a sense of inferiority was instilled among the people of India during the colonial period. Now, for the first time since Independence, my government has shown the courage to strike a blow on this," the President said.

Ms. Murmu's mention of the Viksit Bharat - Guarantee for Rozgar and Ajeevika Mission (Gramin) scheme was met with loud protests from the Opposition benches.

The Opposition members raised slogans demanding its rollback, even as the Treasury benches thumped their desks in support of the scheme. Ms. Murmu had to take a brief pause amid Opposition cries of "vapas lo" (roll back) against the Act that replaced the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act.

She further said that the conclusion of negotiations for the FTA with the EU will give impetus to India's manufacturing and service sectors, and create new employment opportunities.

SC to hear plea over SIR hearing notices in T.N.

A staggering 88%, or 1,21,05,441, of the voters have not yet received their notices, the application noted. "Notices have been generated only for 18 lakh people. There is a gap of 88%. These people have not received notices. The phase is ending on January 30. If a hearing is delayed, the situation would become fait accompli," Mr. Sibal said.

He suggested that the court extend the directions issued in the January 19 order in the West Bengal SIR case to Tamil Nadu as well. "It is the same reasons for excluding people – logical discrepancies, mapping, etc," Mr. Sibal submitted.

Senior advocate Dama Seshadhiri Naidu, appearing for the EC, sought an adjournment of the case. He suggested January 30 or February 2.

Mr. Sibal objected, saying there was no point in hearing the case on either date as the last date for filing objections and claims was January 30.

Chief Justice Kant fixed the hearing in the Tamil Nadu case on January 29, asking Mr. Naidu to appear online if necessary.

Mr. Sibal submitted that there were further problems with the West Bengal SIR. He said the EC would just not be able to hear all the people excluded from the draft rolls in the State.

"They will have to hear nine lakh people every day to complete this exercise. So far, they have only given hearings to one lakh people," Mr. Sibal submitted for the ruling Trinamool Congress leaders from West Bengal. Mr. Sibal said the "logical discrepancies" cited in Tamil Nadu by the EC were more or less the same as in West Bengal.

Scheduling the Tamil Nadu SIR case on January 29, Chief Justice Kant orally mooted that as in Bengal, the EC could display the names of the persons figuring in the logical discrepancies at gram panchayat bhavans, public places in talukas and block offices of talukas (sub-divisions) as well as in the ward offices in the cities of the urban areas.

The Chief Justice, referring to the January 19 direction in West Bengal, said in Tamil Nadu also persons likely to be affected could be permitted to submit their documents/objections through their authorised representatives. These documents/objections could also be permitted to be submitted at the panchayat bhavans or block offices.

Petitioners ask SC if EC gave data to show SIR was needed

Pleas against SIR say people from marginalised communities depend on their status as a voter to exercise rights and failure to provide a document causes a fear of 'being thrown out as a foreigner'

> I am saying that despite the 2025 electoral roll, they need a wholesale SIR. How did the EC come to this decision? They must produce data to show that despite yearly updations till 2025, they still needed the SIR done in the midst of elections, and for what
>
> KAPIL SIBAL
> Senior advocate

Senior advocate Kapil Sibal asked the Supreme Court on Wednesday if the Election Commission of India (EC) had placed any data on record to demonstrate that a nationwide Special Intensive Revision (SIR) was necessary and imminent despite the annual updation to the electoral roll.

Mr. Sibal opened the rejoinder submissions for the petitioners, which include Opposition parties from Kerala, Tamil Nadu and West Bengal, after the poll body completed its marathon arguments, spread over multiple days, in favour of the SIR.

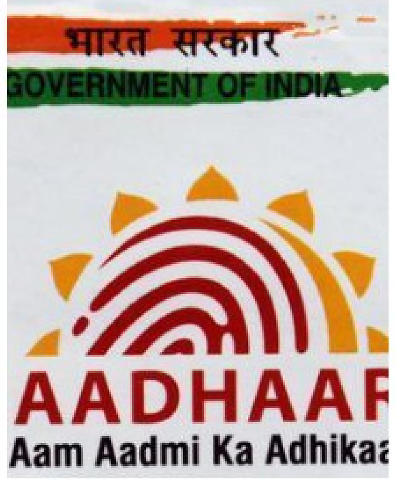
Senior advocate Gopal Sankaranarayanan, for NGO Association for Democratic Reforms, submitted, "Rights which they cannot exercise unless they are citizens. The problem is on the ground when evidentiary documentation is sought for. If you cannot show one of the two documents, you have to live in dread of being thrown out as a foreigner... We have seen ICE do that in the U.S. It may happen here... We are worried about the fact that this small piece of paper holds protection for us, our civil rights and our right to be a part of this country".

Mr. Sibal said that the EC should have been able to provide data based on a detailed study that it was necessary to conduct SIR. Chief Justice of India Surya Kant said that the poll body was only asking for documents in cases of electors unable to link their names to that of themselves or their parents in the 2002 rolls. "A process of this nature should have an application of mind giving reasons as to why this has become necessary today... Why was this necessary, not for just a part or a constituency as a whole, but for the entire nation," he submitted.

Justice Kant said that a lot may have changed on the electoral roll since the previous intensive revision. "But those updates were already being made on a yearly basis. The 2025 electoral roll had all that. I am saying that despite the 2025 electoral roll, they need a wholesale SIR. How did the EC come to this decision? They must produce data to show that despite yearly updations till 2025, they still needed the SIR done in the midst of elections, and for what," Mr. Sibal submitted.

If Aadhaar can be forged, same goes for passport: SC

Krishnadas Rajagopal
NEW DELHI



The court said forgery risks can't be a ground to exclude the Aadhaar from voter identity verification.

The Supreme Court on Wednesday objected to an argument that Aadhaar must be dropped from the documents electors are allowed to use for the purpose of identity verification during the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) exercise on the ground that they are easily forged and sourced through private agencies.

"Do you know that a passport is also outsourced to a private agency under the auspices of the Government of India? These private service centres [through which Aadhaar enrolments and updates may be done] operate under the statutory authorities or the government itself. Aadhaar is a public document. Any document can be forged. Even a passport can be forged, while issuing Aadhaar, the private centre is performing a public duty," Justice Joymalya Bagchi, a member of the Division Bench headed by Chief Justice of India Surya Kant, addressed senior advocate Vijay Hamsaria.

The passport was one among the original 11 documents the Election Commission of India had allowed in its order declaring the SIR exercise.

Mr. Hansaria, representing petitioner-advocate Ashwini Kumar Upadhyay, said the court must consider its September 8, 2025, order to include Aadhaar as the 12th 'indicative' document for verification and a proof of identity.

He submitted that around 5.72 lakh privately-run common service centres carry out Aadhaar enrolments and updates, and that any person with a Class 10 qualification, basic computer knowledge and a biometric machine could operate such a centre.

Mr. Hansaria referred to the Aadhaar (Targeted Delivery of Financial and Other Subsidies, Benefits and Services) Act of 2016 to point out that the document was not meant to verify citizenship or identity, but only as a document to boost "good governance, efficient, transparent, and targeted delivery of subsidies, benefits and services". He argued that Section 2(v) of the 2016 Act defined 'resident' as any individual, including a foreigner, who has been in India for a minimum 182 days preceding the date of application for Aadhaar. "So, Aadhaar cannot prove citizenship," the senior advocate submitted.

He pointed to Section 9 of the 2016 Act to note that the provision specifically mandated that an Aadhaar number cannot be used as evidence of citizenship or domicile. "Aadhaar is an acknowledged document of identity. We have never said Aadhaar can be used as a basis of citizenship. We have always said the EC can verify Aadhaar," Justice Bagchi said.

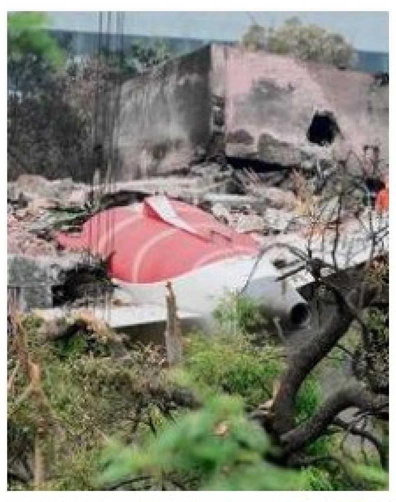
Previously, the judge had referred to an amended Section 23 of the Representation of the People Act of 1950 to note that a person could furnish her Aadhaar number to the Electoral Registration Officer for the purpose of establishing her identity.

SC to hear Air India crash plea early as NGO flags silence from govt., AAIB

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Wednesday agreed to give a short date of hearing in petitions seeking an independent, judicially monitored probe into the reasons for the Air India Flight 171 crash at the Ahmedabad airport, killing 12 crew members and 229 passengers on June 12 last year.

The case was listed before a Bench headed by Chief Justice of India Surya Kant on January 28. The batch of petitions includes one filed by 91-year-old Pushkar Raj Sabharwal, the father of Commander Sumeet Sabharwal, one of the pilots on the ill-fated aircraft, the Federation of Indian Pilots, and an NGO, Safety Matters Foundation. Advocate Prashant Bhushan, appearing for the NGO, made an oral mentioning that the Bench may not be able to hear the case on Thursday as petitions challenging the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) exercise were scheduled later in the day.



The Air India Flight 171 crashed, killing 12 crew members and 229 passengers last year.

Mr. Bhushan submitted that there has been no responses from the Centre or the Aircraft Accident Investigation Bureau (AAIB) on the petitions filed in the top court. "The pilots are saying the [Boeing] 787s are totally unsafe. That there is an electronic problem. A Court of Inquiry has to be appointed," he submitted.

The petitioners have argued previously that they had not moved the court to "apportion blame" but to unearth "what" caused the accident and to safeguard the future against such tragedies. The court had also made it clear that the purpose of an AAIB inquiry was not to assign blame.

Mr. Sabharwal had approached the court, shocked by the "nasty" reportage about his son and rumours of pilot error. He had argued that the AAIB investigation was flawed.

The Centre, represented by Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, had submitted that the probe was in compliance with international conventions and mandatory steps required by the International Civil Aviation Organisation to be taken in cases of air accidents.

India holds security dialogue with Saudi Arabia

Kallol Bhattacherjee
NEW DELHI

Days after signing a 'Letter of Intent' for a Strategic Defence Partnership with the United Arab Emirates, India on Wednesday held a security dialogue with Saudi Arabia. Indian and Saudi senior officials met in the capital Riyadh, where the two sides carried out a "comprehensive review of ongoing security cooperation" and discussed threats posed by terrorist groups globally and "in their respective regions".

Indian officials termed the meeting of the Security Working Group a 'good framework' on ongoing cooperation. @INDIANEMBRIYADH

The 3rd India-Saudi Arabia Security Working Group was co-chaired by Vinod Bahade, Joint Secretary (Counter Terrorism) in the Ministry of External Affairs (MEA), and Ahmed Al-Eissa, Director-General of Legal Affairs and International Cooperation in the Ministry of Interior of Saudi Arabia. "Both sides shared views on enhancing cooperation in current and emerging challenges to counter-terrorism including countering extremism and radicalisation, combating financing of terrorism, preventing use of technology for terrorist purposes, nexus between transnational organised crimes and terrorism," the MEA said in a statement.

The officials also condemned the terrorist attack in Pahalgam of April 22, 2025, and the terror incident on November 10, 2025, near the Red Fort. Both sides discussed measures to enhance bilateral legal and judicial cooperation and law enforcement cooperation, the MEA said.

Indian officials described the meeting of the Security Working Group as 'a good framework of ongoing cooperation', emphasising that it is a continuing mechanism under the India-Saudi Arabia Strategic Partnership Council (SPC). However, the dialogue has drawn attention as it came days after India and the UAE inked a 'Letter of Intent' for a Strategic Defence Partnership.

The UAE's relations with Saudi Arabia have nosedived over the past several months because of diverging policies in Yemen. Neither Saudi Arabia nor the UAE has taken any formal measures against each other, but the two neighbours have been exchanging strong remarks lately over the situation in Yemen as well as in other parts of West Asia and North Africa such as Libya and Sudan. Saudi criticism has generally highlighted that the UAE has been trying to promote inimical forces in areas linked to Saudi strategic interests.

Both Saudi Arabia and the UAE are vital for India's energy security and investments, and are also major foreign remittance generators as they host a large number of Indian citizens working there as expatriates.

SC extends tenure of panel to help heal Manipur

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Wednesday extended the tenure of its all-woman committee of three former High Court judges headed by former High Court Chief Justice Gita Mittal, constituted in August 2023 to monitor the rehabilitation work in Manipur, by another six months.

A Bench headed by Chief Justice of India Surya Kant said the panel would continue to function till July 31, 2026. The panel has so far filed over 40 reports in the Supreme Court, acting as the court's eyes and ears in providing the 'healing touch' in the northeastern State. The court had formed the committee, which had included Justice Shalini Phansalkar Joshi, a retired Bombay High Court judge, and Justice Asha Menon, a former Delhi High Court judge.

"This will be a broad-based committee which will be constituted to supervise, intervene and monitor relief and rehabilitation, restoration of homesteads, religious places of worship, better relief work, etc," the court had observed. The court had tasked the committee, through its work, to endeavour to re-instill the Manipur people's belief in the rule of law.

Govt. streamlines process to get green consent

Jacob Koshy
NEW DELHI

The Environment Ministry has amended rules to allow industrial units to use a single application to obtain permission under the Air and Water Acts along with authorisations under various waste management rules.

Integrated consents will purportedly reduce multiple applications, shorten timelines for approvals while retaining strong provisions for monitoring, compliance and cancellation, according to the Ministry. Such applications are usually made to State Pollution Control Boards.

"The amendments aim to ensure faster, clearer and more efficient approval processes while maintaining environmental safeguards, while supporting the SPCBs and Pollution Control Committees [PCCs] in processing consent applications and conducting inspections. It also removes uncertainty and disruption in operations due to delays in renewal of Consent to Operate," said a statement from the Environment Ministry.

The validity of Consent to Operate will remain until it is cancelled. Prior to this, periodic approvals were necessary.

Environmental compliance will continue to be enforced through periodic inspections and the consent can be cancelled in case of violations. "This removes the need for repeated renewals, reduces paperwork, compliance burden on industries and ensures continuity of industrial operations. Further, the processing time for grant of consent to Red Category industries has been reduced from 120 to 90 days." Red Category industries are those that release the most toxic emissions.

To further speed up processing, the amended guidelines allow Registered Environmental Auditors, certified under the Environment Audit Rules, 2025, to conduct site visits and verify compliance.

Aircraft crashed during second landing bid in poor visibility

Airstrip equipped only with rudimentary ATC set-up operated by a flying school despite frequent VIP movement; it lacks a dedicated meteorologist, instrument landing system, security and firefighting arrangements; AAIB is probing the crash

Jagriti Chandra
NEW DELHI

The pilots of the aircraft that crashed in Baramati in Pune district of Maharashtra on Wednesday were attempting a second landing in poor visibility at an airstrip that is primarily used for flight training despite frequent VIP movement. The facility has only a rudimentary air traffic control (ATC) operated by a flying school, and lacks a dedicated meteorologist and navigational aids to guide the pilots.

The Learjet 45 aircraft was preparing to land at about 8.18 a.m., and the pilots faced difficulty in sighting the runway, according to a detailed statement from the Directorate General of Civil Aviation (DGCA).

ATC support at the facility is provided by either the students or instructors of one of the flying schools using it. The DGCA said they had said the visibility at the time of the crash was three kilometres. The pilots had aborted the first landing as the required visibility range for the airstrip is five kilometres.

Moments before their second attempt, the pilots said the “runway is currently not in sight”, and then reported again that the runway was visible, following which they were given a landing clearance. The ATC saw the aircraft in flames at 8.44 a.m.

The Aircraft Accident Investigation Bureau is looking into the tragedy, and a team left for Baramati soon after the crash.

The pilot in-command, Captain Sumit Kapur, had over 15,000 hours of flying experience, and First Officer Shambhavi Pathak 1,500 hours.

The airstrip, owned by the Maharashtra Industrial Development Corporation, is leased to the Red Bird Flying School and Carver Aviation for flight training. It is categorised as an “uncontrolled aerodrome” as it does not have typical airport infrastructure, including an ATC, and navigation equipment such as an instrument landing system, or security and firefighting arrangements.

Pilots have to rely on visual approach, or bare eyes, as there are no navigational aids that generate cues inside the cockpit to maintain a certain alignment or direction. As the airport is beyond the Airport Authority of India's ATC coverage area, ATC support is provided by the staff of one of the flight training schools, which have only rudimentary infrastructure, a pilot who has trained at Baramati said.

At the time of the landing, the aircraft reportedly rolled left in an effort to line up with the runway, a move that may have caused a loss of lift or a stall, leading it to veer toward the sloping side of the runway, where it crashed on the spot, informed sources citing eyewitness accounts said.

The aircraft is owned by the Delhi-based charter company VSR Ventures Private Ltd., which has 17 aircraft. The DGCA, in a statement, said its last regulatory audit was in February 2025, and no serious findings were issued.

Another Learjet 45 of the company crashed in Mumbai in September 2023. Though there were no casualties, the aircraft was destroyed. The probe report has not been released. The injured First Officer remains paralysed from the waist down.

Baramati in tears; crowds swell in the town to mourn the loss of a senior leader

Vinaya Deshpande Pandit
BARAMATI

The roads in Baramati were teeming with people as mourners flooded the streets to reach Vidya Pratishthan, an educational campus of the Pawars, on Wednesday evening after the mortal remains of Maharashtra Deputy Chief Minister and NCP leader Ajit Pawar were brought.

All shops were shut, and police presence was beefed up, as hundreds of vehicles lined up. A few kilometres away, at the crash site near the Baramati airstrip, the police were deployed to control the crowd.

Forensic teams walked into the crash site to collect samples. Mr. Ajit's plane had crashed just a few metres from the runway, near a field. The impact was so severe, said eyewitnesses, that they heard several blasts in the morning.

“We have deployed quite a few police personnel here as the crowds kept swelling,” a police officer said.

State Cabinet Minister Chhagan Bhujbal's convoy arrived later at the site. “It is a shock. We were sitting together just yesterday, held a few meetings. He was a strong leader who held the entire party together. I don't know what will happen now,” he said.

NCP leader Zeeshan Siddiqui said Mr. Ajit's death was an “unfathomable shock”.

The family of a bodyguard of the deceased leader broke down as they rushed to Baramati from Mumbai.

At Vidya Pratishthan, Usha Namdev Gadadare sat quietly in a corner, holding back tears. A widow of a war hero, she said Ajit dada was more than family to her. “As soon as I saw the news on TV, I rushed from Neera. He was so sensitive towards the needs of the poor. Last year, when I went to Mumbai at the Sahyadri guest house, he called me even as scores of men were waiting. I only sent my name and veerpatni (wife of a war hero) written on a chit. He told me that I should contact him if I faced any troubles,” she recalled.

“He immediately helped me get a few acres of land under a government scheme for war widows. He donated ₹25 lakh after he came to know that a memorial to my husband was pending due to lack of funds,” she said.

Outside the main porch, hundreds of party workers gathered and shouted slogans.

NCP(SP) leader Sharad Pawar walked out after the meetings, amid sloganeering by party workers. The tragic death of a rebellious son had brought the entire family together. But senior Pawar would not have wanted such a reunion.

Ajit Pawar: a political life marked by drama, rebellion

Vinaya Deshpande Pandit
MUMBAI

Baramati mourns the untimely and sudden death of its son, Ajit Anantrao Pawar, 66, one of the strongest pillars of the Pawar political fortress. The Maharashtra Deputy Chief Minister and Finance Minister was killed in a plane crash on Wednesday, leaving behind a party on the brink of turmoil, amid speculation about the reunion of the Pawar family.

The tragic death occurred in his home constituency of Baramati which had voted him to power for eight consecutive terms, the last one against his own uncle's might after the Nationalist Congress Party's vertical split in 2023.

Nephew of Sharad Pawar and cousin of Supriya Sule, MP, he is survived by his mother, Ashatai Pawar, wife and Rajya Sabha member, Sunetratai Pawar, and sons, Parth and Jay Pawar.

A deeply personal man, he was not known to have many personal friends or a personal life apart from a highly disciplined public life. He did not like engaging with the media either, as his rustic comments, straight talk, and comic sense often ended up in the headlines. These comments and comebacks endeared him to his electorate, made his reels go viral, and earned him a following on social media. They made him controversial, drawing ire for insensitivity at times.

ILLUSTRATION: R. RAJESH

Struggle for power

He learnt the ropes of politics from his uncle Sharad Pawar, and his role was defined, and limited, by the veteran's towering presence until he walked out of his shadow after the NCP's 2023 split.

The silent struggle for inheritance of the party between the junior Pawar and Ms. Sule was a staple topic of discussion in State politics for years, even as both leaders publicly insisted that they had a clear split in jurisdiction – State politics would be handled by the younger Pawar, while national politics would be left to Ms. Sule.

He was known as a highly disciplined public leader who would often start his day by 6 a.m. or 7 a.m., often joking that he was part of a 24-hour government, given that Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis works late in the evenings and Deputy Chief Minister Eknath Shinde works through the night till the early hours.

Known as an able public leader with a strong grip on administration, he was lauded for his financial management skills as the State's Finance Minister, and for the successful implementation of the Majhi Ladki Bahin Yojana. He faced allies' brickbats over it, however, for the diversion of funds.

Record holder

He held the distinction of becoming the Deputy Chief Minister of Maharashtra a record five times, while belonging to different parties from across the State's political spectrum.

He became the Deputy CM for the first time with the Congress between 2010 and 2012; then with the BJP for one of his shortest terms which lasted just three days in November 2019. His rebellion against his uncle ended within 80 hours. After he held out an olive branch and returned to his uncle, he became the Deputy CM again as part of the Maha Vikas Aghadi. His fourth stint came while supporting the BJP after the NCP's 2023 split, and he retained the post with the BJP-Shiv Sena alliance after the 2024 election.

It was no secret that he harboured aspirations to become Chief Minister, but he was also pragmatic enough to understand that the numbers were not in his favour.

He was accused of involvement in a multi-crore irrigation scam in Vidarbha during his tenure as Water Resources Minister, and was forced to tender his resignation as Deputy CM in 2012 as a result.

Pawar was a feared political leader with a massive clout in Baramati, Pune, and Pimpri Chinchwad. The BJP had reduced his significance in Pune and in Pimpri Chinchwad, but Baramati was controlled entirely by the Pawars.

Leaders across party lines offer tributes, call it irreparable loss

The Hindu Bureau
MUMBAI/NEW DELHI

Political leaders from across the spectrum offered their tributes and condolences over the death of Nationalist Congress Party leader and Maharashtra Deputy Chief Minister Ajit Pawar in a plane crash on Wednesday.

Offering her condolences to the family of Mr. Ajit and all others who were on the plane that crashed, President Droupadi Murmu described his death as an irreparable loss. “He will always be remembered for his special contribution to the development of Maharashtra, especially in the cooperative sector,” she said.

Deputy Chief Minister Eknath Shinde, calling Mr. Ajit his elder brother, said: “He was not just a leader but a scholarly personality with a strong sense of time and a firm grip over administration. Mr. Ajit would start work in the wee hours. I have personally seen him issue orders as early as 6 a.m. He would speak only after thoroughly studying every issue. Though he was blunt in nature, at heart he was extremely pure.”

Calling the news distressing, Union Minister Amit Shah said: “Whenever we met, he would engage in long discussions on numerous issues related to the welfare of the people of Maharashtra. Defence Minister Rajnath Singh said Mr. Ajit was known for his compassion for the people and his unwavering dedication to public service.

Leader of the Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi said the demise of Mr. Ajit and his fellow travellers was heartbreaking. “In this moment of grief, I stand with the people of Maharashtra. I extend my condolences to the entire Pawar family and their loved ones during this hour of sorrow,” he posted on X.

‘Immense grief’

Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge mourned the untimely loss of a leader who had a long and promising political career ahead. “No words can adequately express the immense grief that the bereaved family must be enduring during this difficult hour. I extend my deepest condolences to the entire Pawar family, his supporters and well-wishers. Having served the people of Maharashtra in various constitutional capacities, Shri Ajit Pawar shall be remembered as a seasoned politician who discharged his responsibilities towards his people with sincerity and astuteness,” he said.

Centre demands apology from Opposition for protesting during President's Address to House

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

A protest during President Droupadi Murmu's Address to a joint sitting of Parliament on the first day of the Budget Session on Wednesday led to sharp exchanges between the government and the Opposition parties. The Centre demanded an apology from the Opposition.

Addressing the media, Parliamentary Affairs Minister Kiren Rijiju accused the Congress and its allies of creating a ruckus, while Congress chief whip in the Rajya Sabha Jairam Ramesh said they had protested in a dignified manner against the replacement of the Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MGNREGA) with Viksit Bharat-Guarantee for Rozgar and Ajeevika Mission (Gramin) (VB-G RAM G) Act.

Big uproar: President Droupadi Murmu addressing Parliament on the first day of the Budget Session on Wednesday. SANSAD TV

Members of the Congress and its allies briefly raised slogans against the VB-G RAM G Act, demanding its rollback as soon as Ms. Murmu began her Address. “The manner in which the Opposition acted today is a matter of shame for the country. The Congress and its allies will never be forgiven. While tributes were being paid to Vande Mataram on its 150th anniversary and to Bankim Chandra Chattopadhyay, the Opposition created a ruckus, disrupting the House when the nation should have been remembering their sacrifices,” Mr. Rijiju said.

“At least Shri Mallikarjun Kharge ji and Shri Rahul Gandhi ji should have told Opposition MPs not to insult Vande Mataram, undermining the honour of our great freedom fighters. Instead they both were also standing and disturbing the President's speech,” he added in a post on X.

Nadda's remarks

Union Health Minister J.P. Nadda demanded an apology from the Opposition. “...the way the Congress leaders and the Opposition once again habitually violated parliamentary decorum is utterly reprehensible,” he said.

However, Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge took on the government in a social media post.

“Every year the Union Cabinet clears the President's Address like a recycled ritual, reusing the same set of claims without truth or accountability,” Mr. Kharge said, adding, “While making lofty speeches on ‘development’, the anti-poor, pro-crony Modi government has mercilessly dismantled MGNREGA – an Act that guaranteed the Right to Work – snatching away the only source of livelihood for crores of workers. What kind of Viksit Bharat is this, where the poor are denied the means to survive, and dignity is sacrificed for slogans”.

Mamata seeks SC-monitored probe into Ajit Pawar's death

KOLKATA

West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee on Wednesday demanded a Supreme Court-monitored probe into the death of Maharashtra Deputy Chief Minister Ajit Pawar in a plane crash.

“We trust only the Supreme Court. All other agencies have been completely compromised,” she said. Ms. Banerjee said there were reports that Mr. Ajit was planning to return to the Nationalist Congress Party faction led by his uncle Sharad Pawar.

“Why did this accident happen before Ajit Pawar could return to his old faction,” she said.

26 schools in Chandigarh receive hoax bomb threats

Bomb threats were sent to 26 schools in Chandigarh over email on Wednesday, all of which turned out to be hoaxes, according to the police. The police said multiple schools across Chandigarh received bomb threats over email, prompting the immediate deployment of anti-sabotage teams, and bomb disposal squads to conduct comprehensive searches at school premises. "No suspicious or explosive material was found at any of the locations. The matter is currently under investigation, and appropriate legal action is underway," a statement said. As a precautionary measure, regular deployment of police will be ensured in and around all schools from January 29 onward, it added.

CBI facilitates deportation of three Malaysian fugitives

The Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) on Wednesday said it facilitated the deportation of three Malaysian Interpol Red Notice subjects from India to Malaysia through Interpol channels. They have been identified as Sridharan Subramaniam, Pratifkumar Selvaraj, and Navindren Raj Cumarason. "The said individuals are wanted by the Malaysian authorities for the offences related to organised criminal activities," it said. The three accused were travelling from the United Kingdom to India when the Kuala Lumpur authorities alerted their Indian counterparts. They were denied entry by authorities at the Mumbai International Airport.

66% sanitation workers in Central govt. from SC, ST, OBC groups: DoPT report

The report shows that among all Group A posts in Union Ministries and departments, 14.2% were held by SCs, 6.54% by STs, and 19.14% by OBCs; the report provides no data on EWS employees

Abhinay Lakshman
NEW DELHI

More than 66% of the Group C safai karmacharis (sanitation workers) employed in the Union government come from the Scheduled Castes (SC), Scheduled Tribes (ST), and Other Backward Classes (OBC), show data on reservation in the annual report for 2024-25 from the Department of Personnel and Training (DoPT).

The report, released last week, showed that 14.2% of the Group A posts in the Union Ministries and departments were held by SCs, 6.54% by STs, and 19.14% by OBCs. DoPT regulations on direct recruitment to all groups of posts in the Union government require reserving 15% of seats for SCs, 7.5% for STs, 27% for OBCs, and 10% for Economically Weaker Sections.

The data in the 2024-25 report on the representation of SC, ST, and OBC employees in the Union government showed that in Group C (excluding sanitation workers) posts, 16.75% were SCs, 8.94% STs, and 27.29% OBCs. In Group B posts, SCs comprised 16.2%, STs 7.63%, and OBCs 21.95%.

Overall, among the 32.52 lakh Union government employees across 80 Ministries and departments that the latest report accounted for, the representation of SCs was at 16.84%, STs 8.7%, and OBCs 26.32%. However, the report does not provide any data on the representation of EWS employees.

The DoPT said that this data was for Central government employees as of January 1, 2024.

Data gap

This is the first time since its 2018-19 annual report that the DoPT has put out data on the representation of SCs, STs, and OBCs across most of its Ministries and departments.

In annual reports from 2019, the DoPT has been accounting for partial data on Union government employees, showing representation figures for a total of 19-20 lakh employees.

The DoPT said that this shortfall had been occurring because not all Ministries and Departments were able to provide the data in time.

Trend shift

Compared with the representation figures from 2018-19 for Union government employees, the last time when over 32 lakh employees were accounted for across 78 Ministries and Departments, the overall representation of SC staffers went down from 17.49% to 16.84%, that of ST staffers went up slightly from 8.47% to 8.94%, and that of OBC staffers saw the highest increase from 21.57% to 26.32%.

Across Groups A, B, and C, the highest increase in representation was seen among OBCs from the figures from 2018-19, while the representation of SC and ST groups remained the same.

Taking count

The Personnel Ministry, in its latest report, has published the representation of SCs, STs and OBCs in the posts and services of the Union government, as per data received from 80 Ministries and departments

Group	Total no. of employees	SC	ST	OBC
A	1,19,178	16,920 (14.2%)	7,793 (6.54%)	22,807 (19.14%)
B	3,64,307	59,006 (16.20%)	27,789 (7.63%)	79,952 (21.95%)
C (excluding sanitation workers)	27,27,930	4,56,925 (16.75%)	2,43,872 (8.94%)	7,44,527 (27.29%)
C (sanitation workers)	40,737	14,971 (36.75%)	3,331 (8.18%)	8,614 (21.15%)

Health Ministry eases drug trial norms; cuts licence requirement

NEW DELHI

CDSCO handles nearly 35,000 test licence applications a year; the reform is aimed at reducing regulatory burden

The Union Health and Family Welfare Ministry has notified key amendments to the New Drugs and Clinical Trials (NDCT) Rules, 2019, to reduce regulatory burden and promote ease of doing business.

Under the existing regulatory framework, pharmaceutical companies are required to obtain a test licence from the Central Drugs Standard Control Organisation (CDSCO) for the manufacture of small quantities of drugs intended for examination, research, or analysis purposes. Through the notified amendments, this licensing requirement for non-commercial manufacture has been replaced with a prior-intimation mechanism.

Ease of business

"As a result, the industry will no longer be required to seek a test licence and may proceed with pharmaceutical development upon submitting an online intimation to CDSCO, except in the case of a limited category of high-risk drugs, including cytotoxic drugs, narcotic drugs, and psychotropic substances," a senior Health Ministry official said.

This reform is expected to lead to a minimum saving of 90 days in the drug development life cycle, providing a significant boost to pharmaceutical research and innovation. Also, for categories where test licences continue to be applicable, the statutory processing timeline has been reduced from 90 days to 45 days.

"CDSCO processes approximately 30,000 to 35,000 test licence applications annually, the reform is expected to substantially reduce regulatory burden and benefit a large number of stakeholders," said a release issued by the Health Ministry.

In another important step to expedite clinical research, the requirement of obtaining prior permission for certain categories of low-risk Bioavailability/ Bioequivalence (BA/BE) studies has been dispensed with. Such studies may now be initiated on the basis of a simple online intimation to CDSCO.

Kerala Tourism, The Hindu Group to host conclave on inclusive tourism

The Hindu Bureau
CHENNAI

Kerala Tourism and The Hindu Group have come together for 'Kerala for All', a two-day knowledge conclave on inclusive and accessible tourism, to be held on January 31 and February 1 in Kochi. The conclave will be inaugurated by Kerala Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan.

Kerala has already made remarkable progress in responsible and community-led tourism, and the next step in this journey is to build an ecosystem that is truly inclusive and accessible for all.

Articulating this intent, Kerala Minister for Public Works and Tourism P.A. Mohamed Riyas said: "Kerala has long believed that tourism must be responsible, inclusive and rooted in community well-being. Through this conclave, we are taking a decisive step towards making accessibility and inclusivity the cornerstones of our next phase of tourism development."

The conclave is designed to provide Kerala with insights and global perspectives to its approach to inclusive tourism.

Kerala Tourism Secretary Biju K. said: "This conclave is an important knowledge platform to assess where Kerala stands today and what we must build for tomorrow. By bringing together global experts, policymakers and practitioners, we aim to translate dialogue into a clear, actionable framework for inclusive and accessible tourism in the State."

For meaningful impact

The partnership also reflects The Hindu Group's role in convening policy-relevant conversations on issues of national and global importance. Suresh Nambath, Editor, The Hindu, highlighted the need for sustained discourse in the public sphere involving the wider civil society to inform policy action and government initiatives.

"At The Hindu, we are committed to using our publishing platforms in shaping conversations and driving policies that create meaningful impact. This partnership with Kerala Tourism is a demonstration of the importance we place on accessibility and inclusion in tourism."

Highlighting the collaborative nature of the initiative, Suresh Balakrishna, Chief Revenue Officer, The Hindu, said the platform would connect government, industry and civil society to drive meaningful change.

"By collaborating with Kerala Tourism on a platform of this depth and intent, The Hindu aims to curate and support dialogues that inform and influence how destinations plan and deliver inclusive tourism experiences," he said.

SC says States 'building castles in the air' on stray dog sterilisation

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

Faced with reports that the States have done little to enhance their capacity to sterilise stray dogs, the Supreme Court on Wednesday asked if the State governments were "building castles in the air".

A Bench of Justices Vikram Nath, Sandeep Mehta and N.V. Anjaria expressed dissatisfaction with the submissions made by various States about their animal birth control (ABC) facilities, infrastructure for sterilisation of stray dogs, and setting up of animal shelters. The court was unhappy about the lack of initiative on the part of the States to comply with the Supreme Court's directions, including the fencing of institutional areas and removal of stray dogs from roads and highways.

Amicus curiae and senior advocate Gaurav Agarwal submitted that Bihar had 34 ABC centres where, according to the State government, 20,648 dogs were sterilised. However, there was no specific data on the daily capacity of sterilisation or other details.

"The State should have done a complete audit of ABC centres. If there are more than six lakh dogs in the State, the sterilisation of 20,648 dogs was totally insufficient. Ninety-one dogs are presently lodged in the pounds. The affidavit does not indicate in how many institutional areas the survey has been done to see if there are fences, boundary walls, etc.," Mr. Agarwal submitted.

"They are all building castles in the air. None of the States have given data on how many stray dog bites happened, except for Assam," the Bench remarked.

Increasing dog bites

The court was astonished by the frequency of dog-bite incidents in Assam. "In 2024, there were 1.66 lakh bites. In 2025, only in January, there were 20,900. This is shocking," it observed.

The Bench warned of strict action against States which make vague assertions in their affidavits in order to cloak non-compliance. "We are going to pass strong strictures against States that make vague averments," Justice Nath said.

The top court posted the matter for hearing on Thursday.

FAITH

God, governed by devotion

God, the Supreme Being, submits Himself to the devotion of His devotees and at times even acts in accordance with their wishes. Velukkudi Sri Ranganathan Swamy said in a discourse that Lord Krishna resolved not to wield any weapon during the Mahabharata war. At the same time, Bhishma took a vow that he would compel the Lord to take up arms. The Lord was not concerned about breaking His own resolve. Instead, He chose to honour the words of His own devotee. Similarly, at Thiruvekka, Kanchi, the Lord is known as "Sonna vannam Seidha Perumal" – the Lord who acted as told. Thirumazhisai Azhwar once commanded the Lord to leave Kanchi and come with him. In obedience, the Lord departed, taking His divine bed, "Adi Sesha". Later, when the Azhwar asked Him to return, the Lord came back and resumed His place. His obedience is not born of compulsion but of grace, revealing that God chooses to be governed by devotion.

In yet another story, when Sugriva, the chief of the monkey legions, asked Lord Rama how to cross the ocean and reach Lanka, Rama replied that they should seek the counsel of Vibhishana, who advised that the proper course was to request Samudra Raja, the King of Sea, for a passage. Accepting Vibhishana's words, Lord Rama undertook a penance for three days, praying to the Sea King. Finally, in another instance, Lord Narayana chose to abide by Nammazhwar's words when the Lord desired to take the Azhwar to Srivaikunta with his divine physical body so that the celestial beings could behold him. Nammazhwar humbly requested that only his soul be taken. Respecting the wish, the Lord obliged.

'Purposely played six batters and five bowlers to challenge ourselves'

K.R. DEEPAK

We purposely played six batters and five bowlers to challenge ourselves. We also wanted all those in the World Cup squad to play. We've been playing well when we batted first. So I wanted the guys to take responsibility if we were chasing 200 with two wickets down. But at the end of the day, good learning — Suryakumar Yadav.

It's about assessing the conditions and continuing to fight: Henry

K.R. DEEPAK

The key is assessing conditions. We've played on three good surfaces, small grounds, and it was no different today. For us, it's about continuing to fight. You're going to have overs where you get taken for runs, but as long as you keep believing you can change it by taking wickets, that stems the flow of runs — Matt Henry.

Black Caps in cruise mode, Men in Blue hit a bump

Seifert and Conway lay a solid foundation with a century stand while Mitchell provides the final flourish; the Indian batters, barring Dube, have a rare off-day and the team loses by a 50-run margin

NZ IN INDIA

Anirudh Velamuri
VISAKHAPATNAM

India's batting juggernaut was finally stopped as New Zealand mastered bowling with the dew to beat the host by 50 runs and register its first win of the series at the ACA-VDCA Stadium on Wednesday. Shivam Dube's onslaught lit up a packed house on a cool evening in the City of Destiny, but it proved in vain.

A blistering opening assault from Tim Seifert and a late surge from Daryl Mitchell bookended a middle-overs squeeze by India, as the Kiwis piled up 215 for seven after being asked to bat.

Seifert was handed an early reprieve when a leading edge fell safely beyond a backpedalling Jasprit Bumrah. The Indian pace battery paid a hefty price for it. A stand-and-deliver blow straight down the ground took the Kiwis past the 50-run mark. India found a breather when a wandering dog halted play, and a dismissal followed the stoppage.

Devon Conway's decision to go all-out didn't work as he found Rinku Singh at deep cover, signalling the end of a century stand. Immediately after, Bumrah caught Rachin Ravindra off his own bowling.

Seifert attempted to reignite the charge but misjudged Arshdeep Singh's change of pace and perished when he holed out to long-off fielder Rinku. During India's middle-overs dominance, Kuldeep Yadav lured Glenn Phillips for a hit down long-on where Rinku timed his leap to perfection.

New Zealand's repeated searches for Rinku almost became a running theme. The fielder's fourth catch of the night ended Zak Foulkes' stay. Mitchell, though, was unfazed; he smashed 27 runs off nine balls in the final two overs to propel the Black Caps to their second-highest T20I total – they had posted 219 for six in Wellington in 2019 – against India.

Snapping up Abhishek Sharma for a golden duck and Suryakumar Yadav for a single-digit score was a shot in the arm for the Kiwis.

Sanju Samson and Rinku consolidated aggressively as India got out of the PowerPlay with 50 chipped off the target. Mitchell Santner then struck twice, beating Samson on the outside edge to rattle the middle-stump and forcing Hardik Pandya into a failed slice to Foulkes at backward point. Rinku, too, fell soon as India was left with a mountain to climb. But Dube adamantly infused hope, pummelling Ish Sodhi for 28 runs in an over and bringing up his half-century off just 15 balls. But he couldn't pull off a miracle as the ball deflected off Matt Henry's hand from Harshit Rana's shot and left him stranded outside the crease at the non-striker's end.

In hindsight, the decision to play one batter short – Arshdeep had replaced the injured Ishan Kishan – left India short on firepower to stage a late surge.

Power Play: Seifert was in sizzling form while Dube's fighting knock ended when he was run out at the non-striker's end. K.R. DEEPAK

A learning experience: Niki

WPL-4

Vivek Krishnan
VADODARA

Niki Prasad surveyed the gaps in the outfield for one final time in the Women's Premier League on Tuesday.

With four needed off the last ball for Delhi Capitals to come back from the brink and complete a chase of 175 against Gujarat Giants, the 20-year-old had to dispatch the shrewd and experienced Sophie Devine towards the boundary.

She had done so well till then to race to 47 and provide Capitals hope when all seemed lost, but when it came to the climax, she fell agonisingly short as her shot found Ashleigh Gardner at long-on.

It was a heartbreaking end to the contest for the middle-order batter. But moments after the conclusion, Niki was able to take it on the chin and reflect on the game in the post-match media interaction.

Disappointed

"Definitely disappointed that I couldn't get that boundary. But then, obviously, it's a learning [experience] for me. And I'm going to go back and train harder and make sure that next time when I'm put under such a situation, I'm going to cross the line," the 2025 U-19 World Cup-winning captain said.

Niki's effort on Tuesday has vindicated Capitals' trust in the Karnataka youngster.

Although her overall numbers aren't eye-catching, she is clearly capable of holding her own against bowlers of the ilk of Devine and Gardner.

She hit Devine for four consecutive fours through the off-side in the 17th over, and danced down the track against Gardner and bisected long-off and long-on perfectly for a boundary in the penultimate over.

Confidence-booster

"It gives me a lot of confidence that such a big franchise is showing so much faith with retention and things like that.

"I was just waiting for that one chance where I finish a game for DC. Unfortunately I couldn't do it today, but I'm going to do it going forward," she stated.

Agonisingly short: Niki helped Capitals mount a fightback but couldn't take her team past the finish line. X@DELHICAPITALS

Novak Djokovic admitted he got lucky after opponent Lorenzo Musetti retired hurt on Wednesday to send the Serbian great into his 13th Australian Open semifinal and a showdown with reigning champion Jannik Sinner. Earlier in women's singles, Jessica Pegula and Elena Rybakina scored upset wins in their last four clashes.

The 38-year-old Djokovic, chasing an all-time record 25th Grand Slam crown, has the tennis gods smiling on him. His last-16 opponent Jakub Mensik pulled out without a ball being hit and Musetti was forced to retire with the Italian leading 6-4, 6-3, 1-3 on Rod Laver Arena.

The fifth-seeded Musetti was well on top when he needed treatment on his upper right leg, and with his movement badly impeded, was forced to reluctantly throw in the towel.

"I feel really sorry for him, he was the far better player, I was on my way home tonight," said Djokovic, who had been uncharacteristically error strewn and staring down the barrel.

"He should have been the winner today no doubt. I am extremely lucky to get through this one today."

Djokovic has been trying to move past Margaret Court and clinch the landmark 25 since his last Major title at the US Open in 2023. It has proved increasingly difficult with the emergence of Sinner and World No. 1 Carlos Alcaraz.

Italian second seed Sinner was sublime in sweeping past big-serving American eighth seed Shelton 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. He holds a 6-4 win-loss record over Djokovic and has won their last five encounters.

Moscow-born Kazakh Rybakina, the 2022 Wimbledon champion, stunned second seed Iga Swiatek 7-5, 6-1 to book her spot in the last four, while Pegula swept aside Amanda Anisimova 6-2, 7-6(1) in an all-American affair.

The 26-year-old fifth seed Rybakina has made the Melbourne final once before, in 2023 when she lost in three tough sets to Sabalenka.

Defeat denied Swiatek in her latest bid for a career Grand Slam of all four Majors, having already won Wimbledon, the French Open and the US Open.

Pegula, who had dethroned Madison Keys in the previous round, was helped by an error-riddled display from fourth seed Anisimova, who racked up 44 unforced errors to the former's 21.

Her frustrations boiled over at the end as her hopes of reaching a third Major final in a row melted away in a blur of mistakes.

Day 11 in numbers

1 Musetti is the first player to retire in the quarterfinals or beyond after winning the first two sets at a Major

1 Rybakina is the first player to defeat Swiatek multiple times at a single Slam

2 Djokovic becomes the second oldest men's semifinalist at the Australian Open after Rosewall (1976 and 1977)

3 Rybakina is the third woman (after Barty and Swiatek) since 2020 to register eight consecutive wins against top-10 players

4 Djokovic has made the semifinals of the Melbourne Major for four years in a row the first time in his career (2023-2026)

8 The top four men's seeds have entered the semifinals of a Grand Slam for just the eighth time in the last 30 years

12 Djokovic is through to a record 12th Major semifinal since turning 35

50 Sinner has recorded 50 wins in 60 matches in hard-court Slams. The last man to register as many wins in 60 or fewer matches is Federer (59, 2006)

103 Djokovic now has the most wins among men at the Australian Open, surpassing Federer

1400 The Serb is the third man (after Connors and Federer) to play 1,400 Tour-level matches

A wounded Karnataka will be on the hunt for a knockouts spot

After a calamitous performance against MP, the visitors will have their task cut out when it meets Punjab; Rahul, Prasidh will be keen to fire

RANJI TROPHY

N. Sudarshan
MOHALI

A wounded Karnataka will take on Punjab in an all-important Ranji Trophy final round Elite Group-B fixture at the IS Bindra PCA Stadium here from Thursday.

Four-way battle

Last week's chastening 217-run defeat to Madhya Pradesh (MP) has landed Karnataka (21 points) in a four-way battle for the two knock-out berths with Maharashtra (24), MP (22) and Saurashtra (19).

And so calamitous was the performance that it triggered a captaincy change, with Devdutt Padikkal taking over from Mayank Agarwal.

Getting ready: Rahul pads up in the nets ahead of Karnataka's crucial match. SHIV KUMAR PUSHPAKAR

The 25-year-old southpaw will have his task cut out. First up, he will pray that the sky is clear, for Chandigarh is in the midst of an unseasonal wet spell, with the winter temperatures making things doubly difficult.

Karun Nair - Karnataka's highest scorer this campaign with 614 runs - is injured and so is speedster V. Vyshak.

Padikkal himself bagged a pair versus MP and will hope to regain the touch that helped him amass 725 runs in the Vijay Hazare Trophy.

The entry of India regulars K.L. Rahul and Prasidh Krishna will however come as a ray of sunshine.

So will the form of K.V. Aneesh - gritty knocks of 92 and 57 against MP - and the return of middle-order batter R. Smaran, who has made 595 runs this edition, and conjured a splendid double-century in Karnataka's innings and 207-run victory over Punjab in January 2025.

The host, on the other hand, is out of the reckoning (11 points from six matches).

A top-draw white-ball side, Punjab has gone three straight seasons without making the Ranji Trophy knockouts.

Even Shubman Gill's august presence couldn't save the outfit as it recently lost to Saurashtra by 194 runs in under two days.

The India captain did not practise on Wednesday and is an outside bet for the Karnataka tie.

In all probability, he will have a nearly two-month break without any competitive action, a rare scenario in Indian cricket.

Sarfaraz looking forward to donning CSK's yellow in IPL

Amol Karhadkar
MUMBAI

Sarfaraz Khan's appetite for runs may be well-documented, but it looks ahead to a return in the Indian Premier League, this time around in Chennai Super King's yellows, the Mumbai batter insists the focus is firmly on opportunity rather than expectation.

Fresh from a commanding double century against Hyderabad that marked a return to big scores after a stop-start domestic season, Sarfaraz views his CSK stint as a crucial platform to push his case for India's limited-overs squads.

Having gone unsold for two seasons before being picked up by CSK, Sarfaraz believes IPL remains an indispensable shop window for a white-ball aspirant.

"The IPL is very important," Sarfaraz said on Wednesday, ahead of Mumbai's Ranji Trophy tie against Delhi, at the MCA Sharad Pawar Cricket Academy ground.

In form: Sarfaraz scored a breezy double century for Mumbai against Hyderabad. FILE PHOTO: K.V.S. GIRI

"You get a lot of limelight and almost all international players are there. If you perform, it's seen. White-ball cricket has gone a long way, and IPL gives you that chance."

Sarfaraz admitted that not getting opportunities early in tournaments can be frustrating, but he has learnt to respond with patience rather than panic. "Hard work never goes to waste," he said.

"God gives you things at the right time and the right place. When I didn't get chances earlier, I kept fighting for myself."

The Mumbai batter also spoke about how injury setbacks and a prolonged stint at the BCCI's Centre of Excellence in the off-season tested him mentally. "At NCA, it's very tough. You are alone, you get frustrated," he said. "I wasn't worried about runs then. I focused on fitness and on fixing the things people say I lack."

Groundedness, Sarfaraz says, comes from staying rooted in the present. "I try to stay in the now. I don't think about the future or the past," he said. "I go home, I practice, I bat, and I keep improving."

At CSK, Sarfaraz knows the expectations will be different, but the plan remains simple.

"I never thought I would play for CSK or with someone like M.S. Dhoni," he said.

"I consider myself lucky. I am just focusing on free batting, power-hitting and enjoying T20 cricket."

For Sarfaraz, the message is clear: whether in red ball or white, the route forward lies in runs, patience and perspective.

Delhi Dangal Warriors registered a crucial 6-3 victory over Tiigers of Mumbai Dangals in Match 13 to stay in contention for a semifinal spot in the Pro Wrestling League here on Wednesday even as the Mumbai side ended its campaign without a point.

Close win

Warriors started with a close 4-3 win through Turan Bayramov in the 74kg against Deepak but any hopes of a fightback from Dangals ended as Warriors raced to a 5-0 lead to all but seal two match points at the halfway stage.

Jyoti Sihag (53kg) and Mukul Dahiya (86kg) provided some fightback but Ronak edged past Rajat 3-2 in the 125kg to confirm the victory.

Already out of contention, Dangals captain Aman Sehrawat did not take the mat in the 57kg, but his replacement Sumit still won after Shubham Kaushik forfeited the bout.

Gukesh loses to Bluebaum

WIJK AAN ZEE

D. Gukesh suffered yet another defeat in the Tatat Steel Masters chess, this time against Matthias Bluebaum of Germany in the ninth round, while Arjun Erigaisi settled for a quick draw with Hans Moke Niemann of USA.

World Cup winner Javokhir Sindarov returned a draw with sole leader and Uzbek compatriot Nodirbek Abdusattorov, leaving the latter still in command with six points. Sindarov was joined in the second spot by Jorden van Foreest of Holland on 5.5 points, along with Yagiz Kaan Ergodmus of Turkey. The trio is followed by Niemann with four rounds to come.

Gukesh, Praggnanandhaa and Arjun have four points apiece and the World champion, it was another heart-breaking result with white.

Playing the King pawn game, Gukesh tried the Bishop's opening that has not been very popular of late in elite level tournaments. Bluebaum was quite up to the task in finding his counter-play right from the opening and came up with imaginative display as Gukesh's light squared Bishop found itself trapped by own forces.

The initiative was in the favour of the German and he played fearlessly to win a rook for a minor piece after which it was just a matter of a few more moves. Gukesh resigned on his 37th turn.

Praggnanandhaa defeated Aravindh Chithambaram, outplaying the former in what should have been a drawable rook and pawns endgame. This was his first victory in the tournament.

Arjun played the white side of an English opening wherein his attempts to complicate matters as per his preference did not materialise once again. After a decent start here, the top seed has been struggling.

Ninth round results:

D. Gukesh (Ind, 4) lost to Matthias Bluebaum (Ger, 5); R. Praggnanandhaa (Ind, 4) bt Aravindh Chithambaram (Ind, 2.5); Anish Giri (Ned, 4.5) drew with Vladimir Fedoseev (Slo, 4.5); Arjun Erigaisi (Ind, 4) drew with Hans Moke Niemann (USA, 5).

Javokhir Sindarov (Uzb, 5.5) drew with Nodirbek Abdusattorov (Uzb, 6); Jorden van Foreest (Ned, 5.5) bt Vincent Keymer (Ger, 4); Thai Dai Van Nguyen (Cze, 3) lost to Yagiz Kaan Erdogmus (Tur, 5.5).

'Need introspection on incidents after Governor's speech'

He was referring to the chaos in the joint session after the Governor cut short his address and walked out.

With reference to the stalemate in the House – with the BJP and the JD(S) members accusing the ruling Congress members of insulting the Governor and the ruling Congress members accusing the Governor of insulting the national anthem – the Speaker asked the members to end the issue and continue the debate on motion of thanks to the Governor's address.

The Speaker, who on Tuesday issued a ruling asking members to desist from going into the conduct of the Governor during the debate, reiterated it on Wednesday.

The impasse in the Assembly ended with this statement by the Speaker.

Earlier, the House witnessed a pandemonium during the post-lunch session as the BJP and the JD(S) members persisted with their demand that Law Minister H.K. Patil provide call details related to his allegations that the Lok Bhavan was getting instructions over telephone from the Union Home Ministry.

Though the Opposition members demanded that the Law Minister should withdraw his statement if he fails to provide call details, the Law Minister refused to budge and described his statement as allegations. He stuck to his stand that it was left to the Union Home Ministry and the Lok Bhavan to respond to his allegations.

Special court accepts Lokayukta 'B' report

Meanwhile, Governor Thaavarchand Gehlot, on August 19, 2024, granted approval under Section 17A of the Prevention of Corruption (PC) Act, 1988 for conduct of investigation against Mr. Siddaramaiah on the applications made by Mr. Krishna and others seeking nod from Governor.

However, Mr. Siddaramaiah challenged the Governor's decision before the High Court of Karnataka.

A single judge of the High Court in his verdict on September 24, 2024 had not only upheld the approval given by the Governor but had also stated that the allegations "undoubtedly requires an investigation" as the beneficiary of the sites is the wife of Mr. Siddaramaiah.

Following this, the special court on September 25, 2024 had directed the Superintendent of Police, Lokayukta police, Mysuru to register a First Information Report (FIR) against Mr. Siddaramaiah and others, conduct investigation, and submit a report.

Appeals filed

Meanwhile, Mr. Siddaramaiah, his wife and others filed appeals before a Division Bench of the High Court challenging single judge's order and the appeals are still pending for adjudication after issuance of notice to the Governor and Mr. Krishna way back in December 2024.

On the other hand, the Lokayukta police, after investigation, filed a 'B' report that they could not establish the allegations of corruption and other criminal offences alleged against Mr. Siddaramaiah, Ms. Parvathi, Mr. Mallikarjuna Swamy and Mr. Devaraju, who were arraigned as as prime accused in the FIR.

Later, the special court in April, 2025, permitted Lokayukta police to investigation into the role of MUDA officials and others while differing the decision on whether or not to accept 'B' report as Mr. Krishna opposed acceptance of 'B' report while alleging flaws in the investigations, and the Lokayukta police too had told the court that further investigation on certain aspects against Mr. Siddaramaiah and three others were under way.

Finally, the Lokayukta police filed another report on further investigation before the special court on January 22, 2026 with respect to the four prime accused and the court heard the arguments on Mr. Krishna's protest petition against investigation reports.

Is Governor's phone being tapped? BJP asks govt.

This question came in response to Law and Parliamentary Affairs Minister H.K. Patil stating that Governor Thaawarchand Gehlot had been 'receiving instructions from New Delhi over the phone'

The BJP accused the Congress government in Karnataka of tapping telephone calls at Lok Bhavan, in response to Law and Parliamentary Affairs Minister H.K. Patil stating in the Assembly that Governor Thaawarchand Gehlot had been 'receiving instructions from New Delhi over the phone'.

The issue arose on Wednesday, during a discussion on the motion of thanks to the Governor's address when senior BJP member S. Suresh Kumar recalled events from January 2011. He said that then Governor H.R. Bharadwaj had set a precedent by walking out of the joint session of the legislature without reading the full text of the address after the then Leader of Opposition Siddaramaiah asked him not to deliver the address.

Responding to this, Mr. Patil remarked that the present Governor was receiving calls from Delhi, and acting at the behest of the Centre. His comment triggered chaos in the House.

BJP members strongly objected to the remark, with Mr. Suresh Kumar asking whether the government was tapping phones. "Is the Lok Bhavan phone being tapped? The Law Minister should explain," he demanded. IT-BT Minister Priyank Kharge intervened, alleging that phone calls to Lok Bhavan also came from Keshava Krupa, the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) headquarters in Karnataka.

Mr. Suresh Kumar insisted that Mr. Patil's repeated statements pointed to the seriousness of the issue. "He has again claimed that calls come from Delhi to Lok Bhavan. This means the government is tapping phones," he insisted, adding that similar remarks were made by the Minister on the day of the Governor's address. V. Sunil Kumar (BJP) demanded that Mr. Patil table records to substantiate his claim.

'Give call details'

Mr. Suresh Kumar alleged that the Law Minister had become a 'habitual offender' by repeatedly casting aspersions on Constitutional offices.

Hitting back, Mr. Patil said the Union Home Minister and the Lok Bhavan should clarify the matter. "They accept that Mr. Bharadwaj listened to Mr. Siddaramaiah, but they cannot digest it when I say that Mr. Gehlot listens to the Centre," he said.

Leader of the Opposition R. Ashok said Mr. Patil's statement had gone on record and demanded details of phone calls allegedly made to the Governor from Delhi. He also recalled the fall of the Ramakrishna Hegde government over phone-tapping issue in 1988.

Denying the Opposition's allegations that the Congress government was tapping the telephone of Lok Bhavan, Chief Minister Siddaramaiah on Wednesday made it clear that his government had never indulged in telephone tapping.

"Our government has never tapped anybody's telephone including that of the Opposition members," the Chief Minister told the Legislative Assembly.

Clarifying on Law Minister H.K. Patil's statement that the Lok Bhavan was getting "instructions" over phone from the Union Home Ministry, Mr. Siddaramaiah said the Law Minister was only suspecting that the Lok Bhavan may have got such calls. "It is his inference," the Chief Minister said.

E-Swathu 2.0 hit by technical glitches: Priyank Kharge

Priyank Kharge

The State government's e-Swathu 2.0 portal, launched on December 1, 2025, was hit by technical glitches and was causing inconvenience to property owners in rural areas, admitted Rural Development and Panchayat Raj and IT/BT Minister Priyank Kharge on Wednesday.

Replying to a question by BJP member Kiran Kumar Kodgi during Question Hour in the Legislative Assembly, Mr. Kharge said the portal was facing software-related issues across the State, affecting the processing of property-related documents. He said it would take about a month to rectify the problems and ensure smooth service delivery to rural property owners.

The Minister said the portal was launched after conducting workshops for panchayat development officers and other staff, but software glitches persisted. He said while 44,508 applications had been received through e-Swathu 2.0 in the last two months, only 7,978 had been approved.

The new portal was introduced to bring more property owners under the tax net, digitise property records, reduce fraud, and enable faster online property transactions and tax payments.

Mr. Kodgi said the portal was causing severe difficulties, particularly for people in the coastal region, and demanded restoration of the earlier system until the issues were resolved.

Sexual abuse

Replying to a separate question by BJP member Bharath Shetty on the rise in cases of sexual abuse in educational institutions and hostels, Minister for Women and Child Development, Empowerment of Differently Abled and Senior Citizens Laxmi Hebbalkar said the State government had launched Akka Pade, a special initiative aimed at ensuring the safety of women and children.

She said the programme focuses on creating awareness among students and the general public, and that affected individuals can seek help through Akka Pade, which is jointly implemented by the Women and Child Development Department and the police.

Each Akka Pade team comprises five women Home Guards tasked with providing immediate assistance to women and children in distress, the Minister added.

Proceedings of Legislative Council washed out for the second consecutive day

Leader of the Opposition Chalavadi Narayanaswamy during the Legislative Council session in Bengaluru on Wednesday.

Proceedings of the Legislative Council were washed out for the second consecutive day on Wednesday following disruptions in the morning by the BJP and the Janata Dal (Secular) over remarks on the Governor, and fresh disorder in the afternoon after Leader of the Opposition Chalavadi Narayanaswamy tore up the rule book in the House.

In the morning, the Opposition objected to the commencement of discussion on the Governor's address and demanded an apology from House Leader N.S. Boseraju for his remarks critical of the Governor. Members entered the well of the House, stalling proceedings.

For over an hour, heated exchanges took place between the Treasury benches and the Opposition over the rules of the House and Constitutional provisions. Despite a meeting convened by Chairman Basavaraj Horatti with leaders from both the ruling party and the Opposition, the deadlock remained unresolved.

Verbal duel

The Opposition also rejected the Chairman's offer to expunge Mr. Boseraju's remarks from the records, insisting that an apology must precede any such move. As tensions escalated, a verbal duel broke out between Mr. Narayanaswamy and Congress member B.K. Hariprasad, further adding to the disorder.

Congress member Ramesh Babu suggested expelling members who were obstructing proceedings, prompting BJP members to counter that those who had disrespected the Governor should also be expelled. The Chairman was eventually forced to adjourn the House.

When the House reassembled after the lunch break, the Opposition members again entered the well and continued their protest, despite Mr. Horatti's appeals and move to take up Question Hour.

Rule book torn

Objecting to this, Mr. Narayanaswamy said it was improper to take up further business until the matter was addressed.

Questioning the relevance of the rule book if proceedings were not conducted in an orderly manner, he tore up a copy of the Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business of the Legislative Council and threw them on the floor of the House.

Congress members strongly objected to this, accusing the Opposition leader of showing disrespect to the Chair. They raised slogans against him and demanded that he apologise. Some urged the Chairman to issue a ruling expelling him.

Intervening, the Chairman said the rule book was as vital to the functioning of the House as the Constitution and told Mr. Narayanaswamy that he had erred. He asked the Opposition leader to express regret over his conduct.

Mr. Narayanaswamy insisted that he protested only against the manner in which proceedings were being conducted and maintained that he had not insulted the Chair. However, members of the ruling party continued to shout slogans, forcing Mr. Horatti to adjourn the House for some time. As the uproar intensified even after the House reassembled, Mr. Horatti adjourned the session to Thursday.

'Action against inspector who issued notice under hate speech Act'

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Embarrassed by the episode of the Tarikere police inspector issuing a notice to a Hindutva activist asking him not to violate the provisions of the Karnataka Hate Speech and Hate Crimes (Prevention) legislation, though the Bill in this regard is yet to get the Governor's consent, the government on Wednesday assured the Assembly of taking action against him.

Law Minister H.K. Patil told the House that the exact nature of the action to be initiated against the inspector would be decided in consultation with Home Minister G. Parameshwara.

The issue was brought to the notice of the government by BJP member V. Sunil Kumar, who moved a call attention notice in this regard.

Mr. Sunil Kumar displayed a copy of a notice issued by the inspector to Hindutva activist Vikas Puttur asking him to ensure that he does not violate the provisions of the legislation while participating in a Hindu samajotsava.

Mr. Sunil Kumar accused the government of using the police to prevent Hindutva activists from attending Hindu Samajotsava programmes being held across the State. He alleged that FIRs had been filed against prominent Hindutva activists like Kalladka Prabhakar Bhat and Chakravarthi Sulibele.

'Govt. favourable to declaring Tulu as official language'

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Shivaraj Tangadagi

The State government is in favour of declaring Tulu as Karnataka's second official language and said a decision would be taken after studying the models adopted by West Bengal and Andhra Pradesh, Kannada and Culture Minister Shivaraj Tangadagi informed the Legislative Assembly on Wednesday.

Replying to a question by Congress member Ashok Rai, the Minister said an official team had visited West Bengal and Andhra Pradesh to study the second official language models followed in those States. However, the team is yet to submit its report. Once received, a meeting will be convened with Chief Minister Siddaramaiah to take a decision, he said. Andhra Pradesh has declared Urdu as its second official language, he added. Members cutting across party lines from Dakshina Kannada and Udupi districts urged the government to declare Tulu as the second official language of the State.

Pointing out that Tulu academies have been established and universities are offering courses in the language, Mr. Rai, who represents Puttur, said the State should accord official status to Tulu. Intervening, Speaker U.T. Khader also supported the demand and said the government should seriously consider the proposal.

Mr. Rai said Tulu has a history of over 3,000 years, has its own script, and is included in Google Translate. He added that the language is being researched by foreign universities.

The previous BJP government in 2023 had constituted a committee headed by educationist Mohan Alva, which recommended that Tulu could be declared the State's second official language under Article 345 of the Constitution. The committee had also suggested forming a panel to study the practices followed by other States.

BJP member D. Vedavyasa Kamath demanded an early decision on declaring Tulu as an official language.

The House witnessed lighter moments when Mr. Khader and other members from the region interacted in Tulu for a brief while. "I don't know what abuse Mr. Kamath showered upon me in Tulu," Mr. Tangadagi remarked.

Responding, Mr. Khader said, "Don't worry. When Tulu people express praise or abuse, it is with love and affection."

Immediately, Deputy Speaker Rudrappa Manappa Lamani demanded the official language status to the Lambani language.

Kerala's 583-km high-speed rail corridor gets Cabinet nod

A formal letter will be sent to the Centre expressing the State's interest; operating at 160-180 kmph, with short station intervals and high passenger capacity, the RRTS is considered suitable for Kerala

The Hindu Bureau
THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

Close on the heels of the Centre's move to consider a new high-speed rail corridor for Kerala, as announced by technocrat E. Sreedharan recently, the State Cabinet, which met here on Wednesday, gave in-principle approval for the implementation of the 583-km Regional Rapid Transit System (RRTS) project from Thiruvananthapuram to Kasaragod.

The Centre had earlier extended support for implementing the RRTS, subject to the submission of a detailed project report (DPR) by the State. As per the Cabinet decision, a formal letter will be sent to the Centre expressing the State's interest in the project. The Cabinet has also tasked the Transport department with initiating the necessary consultations. Following discussions with the Centre, a memorandum of understanding would be signed as soon as an in-principle approval is received.

Minimal disruption: Most of the alignment will be on pillars, with embankments and tunnels used where necessary. THULASI KAKKAT

Citing the successful implementation of the Delhi-Meerut RRTS corridor, the Cabinet noted that the RRTS was a practical and socially acceptable high-speed rail system in India.

Operating at speeds of 160-180 kmph, with short station intervals and high passenger capacity, the RRTS is considered suitable for Kerala. Given the State's high population density and sensitive topography that demands environmental protection, an elevated viaduct model could be adopted instead of the embankment model.

This would significantly reduce land acquisition, avoid disruption to natural water flow, and help minimise public resistance to the project.

Karnataka denies protocol lapse during German Chancellor's Bengaluru visit

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

The Karnataka government has refuted allegations made by the BJP that there was a protocol lapse during the recent visit of German Chancellor Friedrich Merz to Bengaluru. All established diplomatic procedures were duly followed, said Department of Personnel and Administrative Reforms (DPAR).

The BJP had criticised Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and Deputy Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar for not being present to receive the German Chancellor, alleging that they skipped the engagement to attend a meeting with Congress leader Rahul Gandhi in Mysuru. In an official clarification, M.A. Manusur, Under Secretary to government, DPAR, State Etiquette - Foreign Affairs Cell, stated that the Chief Secretary of Karnataka, Shalini Rajneesh, had formally communicated with the Foreign Secretary, Ministry of External Affairs (MEA), accepting the proposal for a government-level interaction with the German Chancellor and suggesting January 12 as the date for the meeting.

The Embassy of the Federal Republic of Germany, New Delhi, in a letter dated January 8, informed the State government that due to the Chancellor's tight schedule in Bengaluru, it would not be possible for him to meet the Chief Minister.

The embassy noted that the Chancellor was also not meeting the State government leadership in Gujarat.

Additionally, the Ministry of External Affairs, through an email dated January 8, 2026, advised the Karnataka Government that the visiting dignitary could be formally received and seen off by a Minister (Protocol) nominated by the Chief Minister.All actions had been taken in accordance with diplomatic norms and directions from the Ministry of External Affairs, asserted the clarification.

SO_2: Sulphur Dioxide. Short-term exposure can harm the respiratory system, making breathing difficult. It can affect visibility by reacting with other air particles to form haze and stain culturally important objects such as statues and monuments.

NO_2: Nitrogen Dioxide. Aggravates respiratory illness, causes haze to form by reacting with other air particles, causes acid rain, pollutes coastal waters.

CO: Carbon monoxide. High concentration in air reduces oxygen supply to critical organs like the heart and brain. At very high levels, it can cause dizziness, confusion, unconsciousness and even death.

PM2.5 & PM10: Particulate matter pollution can cause irritation of the eyes, nose and throat, coughing, chest tightness and shortness of breath, reduced lung function, irregular heartbeat, asthma attacks, heart attacks and premature death in people with heart or lung disease

FKCCI seeks metro tag for Bengaluru

The Hindu Bureau
BENGALURU

Federation of Karnataka Chambers of Commerce and Industries (FKCCI) has demanded Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman to include Bengaluru under metro cities to enhance HRA (House Rent Allowance) provisions of millions of workers in the city, arguing that the city contributed significantly to the GDP of the country.The existing provision allowed for a 50% allowance for house rent in metropolitan cities, while other regional cities, including Bengaluru, was still under a 40% allowance slab. Currently, Mumbai, New Delhi, Calcutta, and Chennai are in the 50% allowance slab, while Bengaluru was yet to be included in the HRA metropolitan definition, it said.

NEW DELHI

Infrastructure and construction goods continued to register healthy growth on sustained capex

Growth in industrial activity accelerated to a 26-month high of 7.8% in December 2025, driven by strong performances across sectors including manufacturing, electricity, and consumer goods, official data released on Wednesday showed.

Data released by the Ministry of Statistics and Programme Implementation on the Index of Industrial Production showed that the last time the index grew faster than this was in October 2023, when it grew 11.9%.

The manufacturing sector grew 8.1% in December 2025, marginally slower than the 25-month high of 8.5% seen in November. This was, however, significantly faster than the 3.7% growth seen in December 2024. "Industry registered high growth of 7.8% in December aided by revival in manufacturing as well as the advantage of a low base effect," said Madan Sabnavis, chief economist at the Bank of Baroda. "High growth in November and December is reflective of the buoyancy expected post-GST rationalisation, as well as the investment activity in the country."

A reflection of this investment activity could be seen in the capital goods sector, which grew at 8.1% in December 2025. This follows a 10-month high growth rate of 10.1% in November. Notably, the growth in capital goods came on a high base of a 10.5% growth rate in December 2024.

"On the investment front, infrastructure and construction goods continued to register healthy growth, supported by sustained capex at both the Central and State government levels," said Rajani Sinha, chief economist at CareEdge Ratings.

EU FTA puts India on a level-playing field: Darpan Jain

T.C.A. Sharad Raghavan
NEW DELHI

The free trade agreement (FTA) between India and the EU puts India on a level-playing field with a number of its competitors in a number of labour-intensive sectors such as textiles, apparel, leather goods, footwear, engineering goods, and marine products, India's chief negotiator on the FTA Darpan Jain explained on Wednesday.

In addition, while emphasising that the overall FTA will benefit all States in India, Mr. Jain also highlighted several sectoral benefits to States such as Tamil Nadu, Andhra Pradesh, Karnataka, Kerala, Gujarat, Maharashtra, Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Odisha, and West Bengal.

"Duty-free access from an earlier duty of up to 12% in textiles, apparel and clothing provides a level playing field for exporters and boosts India's competitiveness in the EU vis-a-vis competitors such as Bangladesh, Vietnam, and Turkey, which enjoy duty-free or preferential access under EU trade agreements," Mr. Jain said.

In the engineering sector, the chief negotiator said, India would gain a competitive edge over its competitors such as China, the U.K., the U.S., Vietnam, and Turkiye as India has managed to secure "preferential access" and reduced tariffs.

HAL aims to tap civilian market

HYDERABAD

Hindustan Aeronautics Limited (HAL) will place a stronger emphasis on the civilian market, targeting it to contribute 25% of its total turnover over the next 10 years, its Chairman D.K. Sunil said on Wednesday.

This will entail leasing and domestic manufacturing of Russia's SJ 100, he said. "We will focus on increasing our civil footprint and the target is that about 25% of our turnover should come from civil aviation over the next 10 years," Mr. Sunil said at a press conference at the Hyderabad Airshow.

HAL plans to buy 10 of the SJ-100 aircraft in the beginning, and over a span of next three years start manufacturing the same in the country.

"The aircraft will be our mainstay for UDAN scheme," the HAL Chairman said. The aircraft has a range of 3,500 km and is capable of flying for six hours.

Boeing to deliver 2 aircraft a month to Indian airlines

Jagriti Chandra
HYDERABAD

Boeing aims to deliver two aircraft per month in CY 2026 to its customers Air India and Akasa, said Ashwani Naidu, MD, Commercial Marketing, Boeing Commercial Airplanes.

This figure would indicate a recovery from 13-14 aircraft delivered in 2025.

The improved numbers come at a time when the FAA has lifted its restrictions on production rate of MAX, which now stands at 42 aircraft per month. Boeing estimates South Asia would need 3,290 new planes by 2044, he said.

Ready to transfer Gaza governance, says Hamas

Agence France-Presse
DEIR EL-BALAH

Hamas said on Wednesday it was ready to transfer the governance of Gaza to a Palestinian technocratic committee, while insisting the key Rafah border crossing be fully reopened within days.

"Protocols are prepared, files are complete, and committees are in place to oversee the handover, ensuring a complete transfer of governance in the Gaza Strip across all sectors to the technocratic committee," Hamas spokesperson Hazem Qassem said.

The 15-member National Committee for the Administration of Gaza (NCAG) is a team of Palestinian technocrats created as part of the U.S.-sponsored ceasefire agreement which came into effect on October 10. It is charged with managing the day-to-day governance of post-war Gaza and will work under the supervision of the "Board of Peace", which U.S. President Donald Trump will chair.

The NCAG is expected to enter the Gaza Strip once Rafah crossing reopens.

Tensions high as Trump says 'time is running out' for Iran

U.S. President says a 'massive armada' is heading to Iran, ready to act with 'speed and violence' if needed; Tehran vows unprecedented retaliation if attacked, slams U.S. past wars, offers dialogue

Stanly Johny

U.S. President Donald Trump has said that "a massive armada" is heading towards Iran and is ready to "fulfil its mission", adding that time is running out for the Islamic Republic to make a deal on its nuclear programme. In response, Tehran said that if attacked, it would retaliate "like never before".

"A massive Armada is heading to Iran. It is moving quickly, with great power, enthusiasm, and purpose. It is a larger fleet, headed by the great Aircraft Carrier Abraham Lincoln, than that sent to Venezuela," Mr. Trump wrote in a social media post on Wednesday.

"Like with Venezuela, it is, ready, willing, and able to rapidly fulfil its mission, with speed and violence, if necessary. Hopefully Iran will quickly "Come to the Table" and negotiate a fair and equitable deal - NO NUCLEAR WEAPONS - one that is good for all parties," added Mr. Trump.

On January 3, U.S. forces carried out a nighttime raid in Caracas, Venezuela's capital, and abducted its President Nicolas Maduro, who is currently in U.S. jail facing charges of narco-terrorism. On January 2, amid ongoing anti-government protests in Iran, Mr. Trump had said the U.S. was "locked and loaded" to respond if Iran killed protesters.

Critical message: Donald Trump references the June 22, 2025 hit on Iran and warns that the next attack will be worse. AFP

'Protests hijacked'

Iran said the protests, started by Tehran's traders over the collapsing rial, was hijacked by "domestic terrorists" and "rioters", who got help from foreign intelligence agencies. Mossad, Israel's external intelligence agency, had claimed in a social media post that its agents were "in the field" in Iran. Iranian authorities cracked down on the protests, killing, according to Iran-watching organisations in the West, thousands of protesters. Tehran also claims that more than 100 security personnel were killed in violence.

"Time is running out, it is truly of the essence! As I told Iran once before, MAKE A DEAL! They didn't, and there was "Operation Midnight Hammer," a major destruction of Iran," Mr. Trump said on Wednesday, referring to the U.S. strike on Iran's nuclear facilities on June 22, 2025.

The June war began with Israel's air strikes on the Islamic Republic on June 13. The U.S. carried out a one-off strike on June 22, before backing a ceasefire between Israel and Iran on June 24. Iran targeted the U.S. base in Qatar with missiles before agreeing to the ceasefire.

"The next attack will be far worse! Don't make that happen again," said Mr. Trump.

In response to Mr. Trump's threat, Iran's mission to the UN said it would defend itself. "Last time the U.S. blundered into the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq, it squandered over $7 trillion and lost more than 7,000 American lives," it said. "Iran stands ready for dialogue based on mutual respect and interests – but if pushed, it will defend itself and respond like never before".

Thousands flee Pak. region over fears of military raid

Associated Press
BARA

More than 70,000 people, mostly women and children, have fled a remote region in northwestern Pakistan bordering Afghanistan over uncertainty of a military operation against the Pakistani Taliban, residents and officials said on Tuesday.

Pakistan's Defence Minister Khawaja Mohammad Asif has denied the claim by residents and provincial authorities. He said no military operation was under way or planned in Tirah, a town in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province.

Speaking at a news conference in Islamabad, he said harsh weather, rather than military action, was driving the migration. His comments came weeks after residents started fleeing Tirah over fears of a possible army operation.

The exodus began a month after mosque loudspeakers urged residents to leave Tirah by January 23 to avoid potential fighting. Last August, Pakistan launched a military operation against Pakistani Taliban in the Bajaur district in the northwest, displacing hundreds of thousands of people.

Vehicles loaded with belongings of families who fled from Tirah amid uncertainty over a military operation, on Tuesday. AP

Shafi Jan, a spokesperson for the provincial government in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, posted on X that he held the federal government responsible for the ordeal of the displaced people, saying authorities in Islamabad were retracting their earlier position about the military operation.

Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Chief Minister Suhail Afridi, whose party is led by imprisoned former Prime Minister Imran Khan, has criticised the military and said his government will not allow troops to launch a full-scale operation in Tirah.

Human shields

The military says it will continue intelligence-based operations against Pakistani Taliban, who are known as Tehrik-e-Taliban Pakistan. Though a separate group, it has been emboldened since the Afghan Taliban returned to power in 2021. Authorities say many TTP leaders and fighters have found sanctuary in Afghanistan and that hundreds of them have crossed into Tirah, often using residents as human shields when militant hideouts are raided.

Caught in the middle are the residents of Tirah, who continued arriving in Bara.

So far, local authorities have registered roughly 70,000 people from Tirah, which has a population of around 1.5 lakhs, said a local government administrator. He said the registration deadline has been extended to February 5.

Europe urged to 'step up' on defence as U.S. upends ties

Agence France-Presse
BRUSSELS

Europe must step up efforts on defence and play a bigger role in NATO as U.S. President Donald Trump has "shaken the transatlantic relationship to its foundation", EU top diplomat Kaja Kallas said on Wednesday.

"Let me be clear: we want strong transatlantic ties. The U.S. will remain Europe's partner and ally. But Europe needs to adapt to the new realities. Europe is no longer Washington's primary centre of gravity," Ms. Kallas told a defence conference in Brussels.

Venezuela's Delcy says U.S. unfreezing sanctioned funds

Agence France-Presse
CARACAS

The United States has started unblocking Venezuelan funds that were frozen under sanctions, the South American country's interim President said on Tuesday in the latest sign of rapprochement between long-term foes.

Caracas has been under U.S. sanctions, including an oil embargo, since 2019, following Nicolas Maduro's first disputed claim to re-election the previous year.

"We are unfreezing resources from Venezuela that belong to the Venezuelan people," Delcy Rodriguez said. "This will allow us to invest significant resources in equipment for hospitals."

"I reaffirm what President Donald Trump has said: that we have established channels of communication marked by respect and courtesy, both with the President of the United States and with Secretary (Marco) Rubio, with whom we are establishing a work agenda," Ms. Rodriguez said.

Man sprays U.S. lawmaker Ilhan Omar with liquid, disrupting Minnesota event

Reuters
MINNEAPOLIS

The police arrested a man who sprayed Democratic U.S. Representative Ilhan Omar with a foul-smelling liquid in Minneapolis on Tuesday as she condemned the actions of U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) officials in Minnesota.

Ms. Omar, the frequent target of political insults from President Donald Trump, was uninjured. A security guard immediately grabbed the man and took him to the ground, according to a witness and video of the town hall event.

The police said they arrested the man for third-degree assault. Mr. Trump said on Tuesday night that he had not seen the video and hoped he did not "have to bother".

"No. I don't think about her. I think she's a fraud. She probably had herself sprayed, knowing her," Mr. Trump told ABC News.

Ilhan Omar

In her remarks, Ms. Omar was criticising ICE and Department of Homeland Security Secretary Kristi Noem, demanding that Ms. Noem resign after the recent shooting deaths of two U.S. citizens in Minneapolis.

"I learned at a young age, you don't give in to threats," Ms. Omar said, after refusing to suspend the event.
